

Paltz Cop Controversy—Pro & Con

By IRA FUSFELD

NEW PALTZ
What began as a routine investigation of the police department and its personnel by the Village Board here has developed into a full-fledged controversy following the firing of a provisional patrolman.
The officer, Wayne O'Brien, was dismissed Monday night by the board on the recommendation of Police Commissioner Leland B. Heinze, after a month of considering the patrolman's work. Earlier on Monday, O'Brien and three other unidentified New Paltz patrolmen severely criticized practices by the department. However, Heinze said the decision on O'Brien's status had been made several days earlier.
O'Brien had charged that Police Chief James Walrath had ordered his force not to make arrests for narcotics and vehicle violations. The comments were answered by the Chief as being "all poppycock and without foundation," and that the complainants were "nothing but kids who cannot obey orders."

Walrath said that the firing of O'Brien on the night of an interview was a coincidence and is backed by Heinze, who said that the department review began last month.
In a prepared statement, Heinze, who took over the Police Commissioner's position in May, explained that on Sept. 15, 1970, "a routine meeting" of police department personnel and the village trustees was held to "discuss problems". The meeting, Heinze explained, gave each person present the opportunity to speak his point of view.

Heinze said that it was agreed that the entire discussion would be reviewed for 30 days, during which time other talks would be held. The Monday meeting at which O'Brien was fired had been on the schedule, Heinze pointed out, as a follow-up to the Sept. 15 session.
The termination of O'Brien's contract "was part of the overall review made several weeks ago," Heinze asserted. "The trustees will continue to review . . . and take necessary actions." The police commissioner said that there are three more provisional patrolmen in O'Brien's status, those who have not passed the civil service exam. Heinze said they would be interviewed by him, as would the others in the department, and a review of their work will be continued.
Meanwhile, O'Brien was quoted as saying that he has obtained a lawyer and would ask the governor's office to conduct its own investigation of the board, the department, and his dismissal. He claimed that Walrath was "out after my neck two weeks after he got there when I told him, in front of the mayor, that I would not go along with his orders not to make narcotics arrests."

Walrath, who assumed his job on June 21, said that O'Brien "made himself out as a narcotics expert before the board" at its grievance meeting in September, "but he was hired as a patrolman, not a narcotics agent."
"O'Brien presented an obstacle" to my efforts for good relations with students and others on the force, Walrath said. "He didn't have good relations with anybody. On one occasion he pulled a gun and nearly started a riot," Walrath charged.
The Chief said that the dismissal of O'Brien might "wake the others up."
The other New Paltz patrolmen have backed up Walrath in the clash. Charles J. Davis said the Chief was "bending over backward" to do a good job. Richard Thompson observed that "when the chief came everybody was resentful. They don't like taking orders and that's at the bottom of it," he explained.
Davis and Thompson claim that several of the arrests made by O'Brien and several others were "bad" because they didn't have evidence and no convictions resulted.
While the charges and counter-charges continue, Police Commissioner Heinze said that he "regrets that the patrolmen couldn't wait until the village board met" before speaking out publicly.

Council Hassle

Sinsabaugh-Connors Tangle on UR

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON
That old bugaboo, "lack of communication" turned what had been advertised as a routine public hearing on a proposal to build in the Uptown project into a heated exchange between the chairman of the Council's Urban Renewal Committee and the executive director of the agency at city hall Tuesday night.
Two old antagonists, Clifford Sinsabaugh (D-10th Ward), the committee chairman and James G. Connors, the urban renewal director, squared off again last night because Sinsabaugh said that Connors hadn't told him or his committee that part of the land of the parcel in question was being contested in county court.
The topic of discussion before the aldermen was a proposal by the Plaza Memorials Inc. to build a new funeral home at an estimated value in excess of $200,000 at the corner of Hurley Avenue and Taylor Street in the uptown project.
Things went smoothly, at first. Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo ordered City Clerk

Louis F. DeCicco to read the notice of public hearing describing the parcel (36,000 square feet) and the price ($20,000) for the proposal by Plaza Inc. whose officers include James Gilpatrick, owner of the James M. Murphy Funeral Home at 176 Broadway, Francis J. McCordie, owner of a funeral home of the same name at 99 Henry Street and Frank Frovenzano, owner of Chic's Plaza in the Kingston Plaza.
Gallo then called Connors who read a statement that said the proposal had been approved by the agency, federal and state urban renewal officials and that the developer had been approved as qualified and eligible by the Council at its October meeting when it also set up last night's public hearing.
Gallo then asked for all those persons in favor of the proposal to state their reasons. Bernard Feeney, attorney for Plaza Memorial Inc., took the floor and said that the new building would add property to the tax rolls; its owners were all local residents who lived and operated businesses in Kingston and that the new funeral home would blend into the surrounding area.

Then Gallo asked for those opposed to the proposal to take the floor. Harry D. Graham, who described himself as an attorney for Mr. and Mrs. William J. VanKleeck of 61 Hurley Avenue, took the floor and said that his clients were contesting the urban renewal agency's taking their land. The VanKleecks own 5,000 square feet of the 36,000 square foot parcel.
Graham said that his clients were being deprived of their constitutional rights because the urban renewal agency had refused to relocate VanKleeck's used car business in either the uptown or downtown section. He said it was an example of discrimination against because of his occupation.
He asked that the Common Council refrain from acting on the Plaza Memorial Inc. proposal until after a decision had been made in county court where the VanKleeck case is being heard.
Graham said that he had sent a copy of the brief (on the case) to the Laws and Rules Committee, chaired by Donald E. Quick (D-Sixth Ward).

Sinsabaugh then asked Quick why he, as chairman of the Urban Renewal Committee, hadn't gotten a copy and Quick replied that he hadn't gotten a copy either and that it had been delivered to the city clerk's office. Gallo then ordered the city clerk to get a copy to every alderman, "first thing in the morning."
Sinsabaugh wanted to know then why the urban renewal agency hadn't informed him that part of the land in question was under litigation.
Connors again took the floor and said that the VanKleeck parcel was in condemnation court and that it was a routine thing for the agency to acquire land under condemnation proceedings.
Edmond Roux (R-Ninth Ward) then asked, "How can the urban renewal agency sell land it doesn't own?"
Connors said that that was also "routine" and that the agency could enter into agreement to sell land without actually owning it.

Connors explained that due to the lengthy period of paperwork and "red tape" involved in urban renewal properties that the agency often reached agreement with developers on land that it did not own in an effort to save time.
Roux still insisted that the aldermen should have been told about the lawsuit, adding, "There's no sense in our sitting in that office (the urban renewal office) if we're not going to find out anything."
Connors then said that perhaps the council should follow Graham's suggestion and hold up on a vote on the proposal until the issue was settled in court.
That brought Sinsabaugh out of his chair again, charging that Connors had made the impression that the utmost expediency was needed on the matter in previous meetings with the aldermen before it was brought out at the October session of the Council. Sinsabaugh concluded by loudly stating, "There was never one word spoken of this court case."

The Esopus

Flood Control Project Sought

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON
County Legislator Richard D. Nace (R-Dist. 2), has called for another investigation by Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. into the feasibility of a flood control program for all of the Lower Esopus Creek "rather than just one dike to protect some 'now vacant' Urban Renewal property and erect one shopping center which was erected 'after the floods' and with the knowledge that it was floodable property."

Responding, Fish has agreed to make an inspection trip of the Esopus where it runs through the towns of Hurley, Ulster, Saugerties and the City of Kingston.
The congressman and Nace will be accompanied Thursday, at 10 a.m. by members of the Lower Esopus Creek Committee.

Nace and the committeemen who have been seeking flood control relief for the Lower Esopus for a number of years, say they feel they "can speak for all of the property owners along the creek."
They claim that if the Corps of Engineers can now justify spending approximately the same amount of money to build a dike as they turned down as being "too much" to spend a couple of years ago to protect "all" the people along the creek, reconsideration should be given the entire project. They therefore are asking Congressman Fish to "take another look" and give them some answers.

The trip down the Esopus is the second for Congressman Fish who made an initial investigative voyage at the committee's request two years ago. Nace said that Fish, at that time, quoted the Corps of Engineers as indicating that they could do nothing to help because the property involved in the City of Kingston is urban renewal property. The federal government turned down the project about three or four years ago. Nace said, because the $1 million cost was too expensive.

Now he feels the proposed dike in Kingston will do little good unless additional work is done to the creek. "The water will only back up," he concluded.

Francis E. Mulvaney district conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service has said his department, at the committee's request, made a study and proposed five dams, not just one for the city.
Mulvaney and David Squires, county manager of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee will also accompany Fish. Nace and the committee on the investigative trip.
The future of the Esopus Waterway has been a matter of concern locally for many years. In 1969 the committee received approval from the Corps of Engineers to make a stream study in connection with clearing it for recreational use thereby qualifying it for possible federal and state aid.
Earlier in 1968 a large group of interested persons met to determine what could be done to stem the tide of erosion, debris, flood threats and the creeping paralysis of pollution.
At that time Harry Edinger, Ulster County Environmental Sanitary Engineer suggested that building codes as well as zoning laws be created and enforced with regard to property along the creek.

FUNERAL FOR SLAIN OFFICIAL—The funeral for the slain Canadian provincial labor minister Pierre Laporte was held Tuesday amid the most intensive man-hunt in history for his assassins. Meanwhile, Quebec Provincial Police have received word from an anonymous caller that the Quebec Liberation Front may be willing to accept a government offer for safe passage to Cuba in exchange for the release of the second kidnapped official, British diplomat James R. Cross. An autopsy report has revealed that LaPorte had been garrotted with a chain. (UPI TELEPHONE)

Judge Cashin, who held several judicial posts in Ulster County, retired Oct. 1965 after 10 years on the federal bench as federal judge of the U.S. District Court, Southern District of New York. He was appointed to the federal post which embraces 11 southern counties in August 1955 by President Eisenhower. At that time Judge Cashin was serving as Ulster County judge and justice of the Children's Court. He presided in that capacity from 1943 until his federal appointment.

He was named corporation counsel of the City of Kingston in Jan. 1935 and served until July 1943, when he was appointed by Thomas E. Dewey, who was governor at that time, to the county court bench. He was named to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Judge J. Edward Connelley. He was reelected to the post in 1943 and 1949 on the Republican slate.
A native of this city, Judge Cashin was born Aug. 31, 1892, a son of the late Martin and Catherine Kelliher Cashin. He was married to the former Carolyn Markle, who survives him. They had no children.

Judge Cashin attended Kingston schools and was graduated from Kingston Academy. Following a year's service in a local law office, he entered Cornell Law School and was graduated in June 1915. He was admitted to the New York Bar in April 1916.
In Jan. 1922, he was appointed city treasurer of Kingston and served until June when he was sworn in as a special assistant U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York. Three years later, he resigned to accept the appointment of chief counsel of the Prohibition Administrator. New York. He served about seven months and resigned to open a law practice in New York City. In 1934, he returned to Kingston and in partnership with Arthur B. Ewig, formed the law firm of Cashin & Ewig. The partnership was dissolved when he received the federal appointment.

In 1965, Judge Cashin was honored at a testimonial dinner for 50 years service in the practice of law. Members of the

Leary

Fugitive in Algeria

ALGIERS (AP) — Dr. Timothy Leary has turned up in Algeria, and the fugitive guru of the drug movement reportedly plans to take up residence and work for the Black Panther party in Algiers.
The official Algerian news agency said Tuesday night that Leary, who escaped Sept. 12 from a California prison where he was serving time for possession of marijuana, arrived "recently" with his wife Rosemary and had been granted political asylum.
Shortly before the Algerian statement was issued, the Yippies—the Youth International party—announced in New York that the former Harvard lecturer was "alive and well and high in Algiers."
The Yippies held a news conference outside the Women's House of Detention in New York and released a letter signed by Leary that said: "I offer living gratitude to my sisters and brothers in the Weatherman underground who designed and executed my release."

Yippie leaders also produced a letter from Bernardine Dohrn, who replaced Angela Davis on the FBI's 10 Most Wanted List after Miss Davis was captured last week in New York. Miss Dohrn's letter said the Weathermen have "had the honor and pleasure of helping Dr. Timothy Leary to escape from the POW camp at San Luis Obispo, California."
The Yippies did not disclose the whereabouts of Miss Dohrn, who is accused of plotting to set off bombs in major U.S. cities. There have been rumors that she might also turn up in Algiers soon.
Informants in Algeria said the Learys arrived Saturday and are staying with, Eldridge Cleaver, fugitive minister of information of the Black Panther party, in his villa in the suburb of El Biar.
Leary, 50, escaped from a minimum-security prison at San Luis Obispo while serving a sentence of 6½ months to 10 years. He also faces a 10-year sentence in Texas for smuggling marijuana into the United States from Mexico.
He apparently scaled a chain-link fence while on a work detail and walked away. His prison clothes were found the next day in the rest room of a filling station eight miles away.

Advice on Veteran Programs

KINGSTON

The Freeman's articles on advice to veterans are written by Charles Culver, state veteran counselor, and John Tyler, director of the Veterans Service Agency, headquartered at the Ulster County Office Building on Fair Street. The offices are open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., weekdays.

This week, Tyler and Culver ask:

College not for you? But still you want to improve your job skills. If you're an eligible veteran, try an apprenticeship or on-the-job training program. You can get paid while learning. In addition to the wages an employer pays, you can receive $108 monthly to start. If you have one dependent, you can receive $120; with two dependents the amount goes to $133. These amounts reduce proportionately as the employer increases your wages. On-the-job training programs can continue up to two years. Length of apprenticeship programs is governed by the particular trade.

If you plan to go back to your old job now that you're discharged, don't hesitate too long. You have ninety days in which to apply to your former employer for reemployment.

Speaking of deadlines, veterans have 120 days from the date of their discharge in which to decide what they want to do with their Servicemen's Group Life Insurance. They are protected for that length of time following their release from service and can convert to an individual policy during that time. Veterans are cautioned, however, not to be pressured into converting their insurance immediately after they get home and should be wary of any company or representative exerting such pressure.

World War II veterans who have not converted their term policies will find their premium payments will become prohibitive in the years to come.

Nixon's Rx for Peace: More GOP'ers to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is seeking election day support for his policy in Southeast Asia, telling voters, "If you want real peace, the peace that will last," send more Republicans to the Senate.

"What I am saying to you is that we have a plan which is ending the war, which is reducing our casualties, which is bringing the boys home, but we need senators and congressmen who understand the plan and will support it," the President said in Fort Wayne, Ind., Tuesday night.

Nixon was back at the White House today after his two-day vote hunt with Southeast Asia high on his agenda, including a meeting with Souvanna Phouma, prime minister of Laos, who is in the United States for the 25th anniversary ceremonies at the United Nations.

The President talked of foreign policy, of law and order, of respect for policemen, as he campaigned before crowds that defied rainstorms to turn out for his rallies and line his motorcade routes at three stops in the South and Midwest.

"When people will stand in the rain, that means we're going to win," Nixon said as he bid for Indiana support for Rep. Richard L. Roudebush, who is running against Democratic Sen. Vance Hartke.

Some 12,000 people cheered him at a rally at the Fort Wayne Coliseum, and thousands more were on the streets and at the airport despite the rain.

"In order to have a generation of peace, we need to have backing for the President of the United States, we need it in the Senate, we need it in the House," Nixon said.

Nixon hit a similar note at Johnson City, Tenn., at a rainy rally on the campus of East Tennessee State University, where the crowd was estimated at 30,000 to 50,000 people.

It rained off and on as Nixon urged election of Rep. William E. Brock III to displace Democratic Sen. Albert Gore. "We are ending this war," he said. "We are ending it in a way—Carolina to seek votes for Republican congressional candidates.

There were other Nixon notes, tailored to the audience at each stop. Among them:

—His renewed declaration of opposition to busing of school children for the sake of racial balance, which drew the biggest ovation of his Asheville visit. "I am for the neighborhood school," he said.

—His complaint at Johnson City about Gore's opposition to the two Southern judges he nominated to the Supreme Court. Both were rejected by the Senate.

What we need in the United States Senate is one who will confirm the President of the United States when he sends to the Senate a judge who is dedicated to the proposition of enforcing the laws and a strict interpretation of the Constitution. . . . "Nixon said.

"It is a clear issue."

—His sure-fire issue was the same at every stop: Law and order, campus unrest, and the problem of militant young dissenters.

"We've had a few problems," Nixon said in Fort Wayne, recounting his report of rock-throwing in Burlington, Vt., and chanting demonstrators at some other rallies. He saw none Tuesday.

Nixon said disruptive young people are only a minority.

"I've got news for you, they aren't the majority of young Americans today and they aren't going to be the leaders of America tomorrow," Nixon said. That drew a standing ovation in Fort Wayne just as it did a night earlier in Kansas City.

Nixon's next political mission will be a Saturday trip to Baltimore to campaign for Maryland Republicans.

Starting Oct. 27, the President opens his last campaign swing, appearing at an evening rally in Palm Beach, Fla., followed by more Florida stops. Then he's off to Texas, Illinois, Minnesota and finally to California the night of Oct. 29.

The Western White House will serve as Nixon's base for the balance of the campaign. On Oct. 30 Nixon will speak at an evening rally in Anaheim, Calif.

He will campaign for Republicans in Western and Mountain states, probably Oct. 31.

Likely targets for that swing include Nevada, Utah, and possibly Arizona and New Mexico.

The President is to return to Washington Nov. 4, the day after the elections.

Republican Boss on Spiro: 1972 V-P, Top Spot in '76

BALTIMORE (AP) — Republican National Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton says he plans to renominate Spiro T. Agnew for vice president in 1972 and "I intend to nominate him for the presidency" four years later.

Morton also told several hundred Republicans at a fund-raising dinner Tuesday night that "you will never find a Republican who has done more for the United States" than Agnew.

The GOP chairman and Maryland congressman made the comments as Agnew, a former Maryland governor, sat by his side. They were appearing in behalf of this state's underdog Republican candidates for governor and U.S. senator.

"I have to keep my options open, Rog, as a 'functionary' of the Nixon administration," responded Agnew.

Three weeks ago Agnew called Morton a "party functionary" for supporting the re-election campaign of Sen. Charles Goodell, R-N.Y. Agnew had said Goodell was a radical liberal who had no place in the party.

Earlier Tuesday Agnew, asked by a television interviewer in Chicago if he had any presidential ambitions, had said he "just wants to be the best possible vice president."

When pressed about whether he would rule out a White House try, Agnew said, however, "I'm not ruling out anything."

President Nixon's latest comments on the matter, made several weeks ago, were that it was premature to talk about even the vice presidency in 1972.

Agnew, who has campaigned several times in his home state for gubernatorial candidate C. Stanley Blair and Senate hopeful Glenn Beall, came to Baltimore Tuesday night from Washington.

He returned to the capital earlier Tuesday after a two-day campaign visit to Illinois. After spending today in Washington, the vice president departs Thursday for a swing to Iowa and Arizona, returning East Friday for a two-day visit to Connecticut.

Agnew also said his controversial nationwide campaign travels had stirred criticism from free spending liberals because he caught them "red handed in the open field making off with Uncle Sam's watermelons."

During his television interview in Chicago Agnew suggested it would be "interesting" to have news commentators appear voluntarily on a panel show and be quizzed by elected public officials about the broadcasters' opinions on subjects in the news.

ABC Commentator Frank Reynolds, whom Agnew named as a prominent commentator that might be interviewed, said in New York the suggestion was ridiculous.

State Politics Take On a Confused Tangle

NEW YORK (AP) — A confused tangle of jumbled Party lines has enlivened the state's political picture in the final drive toward Election Day.

Republicans supporting Democrats, Democrats supporting Republicans and a wide variety of ticket-splitting gymnastics has become the order of the day.

Supporters of Mayor John V. Lindsay, nominally a Republican, began pouring into the campaign organization of Arthur J. Goldberg, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Tuesday.

The infusion of manpower was the first tangible benefit to Goldberg resulting from Lindsay's endorsement of him Monday.

While many politicians saw little effect in the Lindsay move, the addition of skilled campaign workers in considerable numbers cheered the Goldberg camp.

Another boost to morale came with the announcement that 23 of the 38 Republican district leaders in the Bronx were supporting Goldberg.

This group, led by Dominick A. Fusco, backed Lindsay in his successful Liberal and independent race for reelection and has been seeking to take control of the party's country committee.

Goldberg and his running mate for lieutenant governor, State Sen. Basil A. Paterson, also have Liberal support.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who supported State Sen. John

J. Marchi, the Republican mayoral nominee, against Lindsay, reacted bitterly to Lindsay's entrance into the gubernatorial race.

The Republican incumbent gathered together a group of supporters outside his Manhattan office Tuesday and criticized Lindsay harshly, belittling the mayor's handling of prison rebellions and sanitation problems.

He was joined by Sen. Jacob K. Javits; Sen. Charles E. Goodell; former Deputy Mayor Robert Sweet; several former members of the Lindsay administration, and former Police Commissioner Francis W. H. Adams, one of several Democratic defectors to Rockefeller.

Paltz School Vote Set On $800,000 Addition

NEW PALTZ
The New Paltz Central School Board of Education will conduct a referendum on Dec. 8, for the approval of an addition of ten classrooms and additional core facilities to the Duzine School at a cost of $800,000.

The decision by the board came after a series of discussions analyzing the various options possible to provide suitable facilities for the increasing number of students in the district.

The Board, in a study of the Duzine building, found the utilities, namely electricity, heating, and sewage treatment facilities to be adequate for expansion.

For the present the board is tabling consideration of a new site. It feels that two site defeats by the district voters indicate that the voters would not approve a new, separate site within the foreseeable future.

Long-range planning in this direction will have to come later at which time population trends in the school district could be reassessed.

The board believes that this addition will handle the space problem in the primary and middle schools for the next four or five years with possible reservation of some major change in the district's economic structure. The board is presently studying the high school space situation and will be making recommendations some time in the future.

The board asks for the approval of this referendum by the voters of the district. The proposed facilities will cover present basic needs and allow a period of time to continue reviewing and analyzing the population changes and economic trends in the district.

Hyde Park Man RR Fatality in Dutchess

By WALTER S. CLARK
HYDE PARK
A 22-year-old Dutchess County man was killed and his brother critically injured at 1 a.m. today when they were struck by an engine attached to a caboose on the Penn-Central Railroad tracks near the Hyde Park station.

Rhinebeck State Police said the men were walking along the tracks on their way to fish in the Hudson River at the time of the accident.

The dead man was identified in a report of Trooper W. R. Blackie as Dennis Sheedy of 13 Woodfield Road, Town of Hyde Park. His brother, Robert, 23, same address, was thrown clear of the tracks as he was hit by the engine. He managed to

Some Port Teachers Return to Classrooms

PORT JERVIS, N. Y. (AP)
—Settlement of a teachers' strike appeared nearer today as many strikers returned to classes, while school board and teacher representatives arranged to resume contract negotiations.

Most of the 160 teachers in the six schools of the Enlarged City School District struck last Thursday in this Southeastern New York area, and classes were extremely limited for the 3,500 pupils.

Tuesday, the teachers ignored a temporary restraining order issued by a State Supreme Court justice. They demanded resumption of talks, mainly about salaries.

Today, DeMyer said "a sound negotiating atmosphere" had been created.

An estimated 50 per cent of the striking teachers were back in their classrooms, in accordance with the agreement.

Under the terms, DeMyer said, there was a "representative group (of teachers) in the senior high school and middle schools . . . functioning to maintain a limited situation for a half-day session."

After that, the association membership was to vote on the arrangement.

Police said all three patients, none of whom was identified, were "severe mental defectives."

They said a 12-year-old patient was found sexually abused and strangled in a cabin. The two other patients, chronologically 28 and 42 respectively, but mentally 6 and 4 years old, were "not criminally responsible" under the state penal law.

Police said the two alleged perpetrators had been isolated from the rest of the patient population.

Viet Action Stepped Up

SAIGON (UPI) —The U.S. Command today reported stepped-up Communist activity across Vietnam. It said nine Americans were killed in the loss of three helicopters and Viet Cong artillery heavily damaged an Allied Naval base in the Mekong Delta.

Communiques from Phnom Penh said Cambodian troops who recaptured a town 21 miles south of the capital reported the fleeing Viet Cong left it "completely looted."

U.S. military spokesmen in Saigon said Viet Cong and North Vietnamese shelling attacks across Vietnam killed one American and wounded 15 others. Field reports at Thung Duc Green Beret camp 24 miles southwest of the capital said 89 Communist troops had been killed around the outpost in the past two days.

It was announced in Vientiane, Laos, that U.S. Air Force Maj. Joseph L. Chestnut, 36, of Fort Walton Beach, Fla., has been missing since Oct. 13 in the crash of a T28 trainer near the Laotian royal capital of Luang Prabang.

The naval base hit by Communist gunfire just before midnight Tuesday night was at the southern tip of South Vietnam and known as "Soldier's Anchor." Allied military sources said at least 25 persons, including 10 American and South Vietnamese sailors, were wounded in a barrage of 40 rounds of 82mm mortar and 75mm recoilless rifle fire, which sank a river patrol boat. The base is 165 miles southwest of Saigon.

Some of the casualties were refugees taken in by the Allied naval personnel, the sources said.

U.S. military spokesmen said seven Americans were killed and two wounded Tuesday when an Army OH6 observation helicopter and a UH1 Huey helicopter gunship collided in flight 335 miles north-northeast of Saigon.

Two crewmen were killed and a third wounded Tuesday when Viet Cong groundfire shot down an OH58 observation helicopter near An Khe, 240 miles northeast of Saigon.

Communist forces also ambushed a Korean civilian-operated truck convoy escorted by American troops on Highway 19 about 20 miles north of Que Nhon 250 miles northeast of Saigon Tuesday. Seven U.S. Army troops were wounded along with seven Korean civilian drivers. Highway 19 has long been a favorite target for Communist ambushers.

GIs escorting the Koreans called in artillery and air strikes and killed seven of the ambush party, the U.S. Command said.

The Cambodian Command said Communist forces carried out another attack near Phnom Penh Tuesday night, hitting Tuk Khleang, a Mekong River town 16 miles southeast of the capital. South Vietnamese gunboats and Cambodian planes drove off the attackers. Cambodian troops lost one killed.

Senior military officers commanding a 10-battalion Cambodian operation along Highway 2 south of Phnom Penh, described the recaptured town of Chambak as "a mess. The Viet Cong completely looted the town," they said.

Golda Answers Egyptians On Wrecking the Plan

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir answers Egyptian charges in the United Nations later today that the United States and Israel wrecked peace efforts in the Middle East.

According to U.N. diplomatic sources, Mrs. Meir's speech is a restatement of Israeli policy in the area—namely that Israel will not resume talks unless Egypt pulls back the Soviet-built missiles it brought into the Suez Canal standstill zone after the Aug. 7 cease-fire went into effect. Mrs. Meir addresses the delegates at the 25th anniversary commemorative session.

The agenda today also included speeches by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, and the United Nations' first Security Council meeting at the foreign minister level in his history.

The Security Council meeting,

★ ★ Sadat Swears In New Rule, Fawzi Head

By United Press International
Egyptian President Anwar Sadat today swore in a new government that included Dr. Mahmoud Fawzi, a 70-year-old diplomat, as premier. Fighting between Palestinian guerrillas and government troops was reported continuing in Northern Jordan.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who has been holding a round of talks with Soviet, Israeli and Egyptian representatives, appeared convinced the cease-fire can be extended beyond Nov. 5 on a day-to-day basis. In the meantime, he was continuing his search for a compromise formula between Egypt and Israel over the missile violation issue.

The matter probably will go a step higher Thursday when Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko flies to Washington to meet President Nixon. It will be the highest-level American-Soviet dialogue since Nixon assumed office.

Sadat's new cabinet was almost the same as that of Gamal Abdel Nasser, who died Sept. 28. The only exceptions were Fawzi and the dropping of Mohamed Hassanien Heikal, the editor of the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram who served as minister for national guidance. Heikal was a close friend of Nasser.

Reports reaching Amman said the Jordanian army and Palestinian guerrillas started fighting anew Tuesday around the towns of Ramtha and Jarash less than 24 hours after the Arab truce team ended three days of battling with a hasty cease-fire. The truce team was carrying out a series of meetings with both sides to try to stop the new outbreak.

Ramtha and Jarash, which straddled the main highway between Amman and Syria, are guerrilla strongholds. Guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat told UPI government forces fired first.

which was private, was beginning at 4 p.m. A U.N. spokesman said it would be devoted to "a review of the international situation." Secretary of State William P. Rogers was representing the United States at the gathering.

When Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad accused the United States and Israel in the General Assembly last Friday of undercutting the Middle East peace initiative, both countries demanded the right to reply.

U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost said it was Egypt that undercut the peace efforts by moving missiles into the standstill zone.

A debate on the Middle East is scheduled in the General Assembly next week.

In Tuesday's session, Prime Minister C. K. Yen of Nationalist China said the admission of Communist China to the United Nations would destroy the world organization. Efforts to admit Mainland China gained impetus last week with Canada's announcement it would support such a move.

Yen said the Peking regime did not represent the 700 million people of the mainland and Chinese people were determined to overthrow it.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, OCTOBER 21, 1970

Revolution by Kidnaps

The idea is so preposterous that it cannot be credited. But the source compels one to think seriously about the charge made by William C. Sullivan, No. 2 man in the FBI, that the radical Weathermen and other "anarchistic groups" may soon stage a wave of political kidnappings in a campaign to overthrow the United States government.

Sullivan said that kidnappings could involve U. S. officials making campaign swings for the fall election—both President Nixon and Vice President Agnew are doing that now and for the remaining days before the election—as are all the members of the House and a third of the Senate, as well as 30 state governors whose seats are being contested.

The President and Vice President are protected by secret service men, though both break away to shake hands on the streets when they drive to their speaking engagements. Congressmen have no such protection. Governors usually are accompanied by state troopers, but not challengers for the office.

Kidnaping this long list of officials would be calamitous, but it would not overturn the government. More likely, what it could do would be to create civil war. All known radicals would be immediately rounded-up, and, if any resistance developed would be mercilessly put down.

Weathermen changed tactics after 270 members were arrested in Chicago in October, 1969. It was the last big city rampage. Their plan after that was to create, "a small, tough paramilitary organization designed to carry out urban guerrilla warfare which would bring out a revolution against the government," Sullivan said.

The kidnap idea is the most recent one, inspired by the success of kidnapers in Latin America. Its recent use in Canada brought it even closer to home. Terrorist bombings, and confrontations with police, in which 21 officers have been killed and 159 injured, since January 1, are diversions in the same operation. How long must we wait for a plan of action to outwit the kidnapers, stop the bombings and end terrorism once and for all? We have achieved order out of chaos more than once in this country. We must do it again, now.

Demand, Deserve Aid

From all over the nation, police descended on Congress one day last week to demand stiffer laws against attacks on their members. They deserve them.

"The thin line between civilization and the jungle—which is us policemen—is being shot to hell and something has to be done about it."

That was the battle cry carried by John J. Harrington, president of the Fraternal Order of Police, to the steps of the Capitol, where his 3,500 delegates from throughout the country faced members of Congress.

"It's time the people of this country face up to it—there is a revolution taking place," Harrington said. "We are here to show the people of this country we are fed up."

Harrington appeared before a House subcommittee considering law and order legislation. He criticized the Justice Department, the Supreme Court, "liberal newspapers like the Washington Post, the New York Times and the St. Louis Post Dispatch and the great TV chains." He also assailed "moderate Negro leaders who have been taken in by charges against police." And he blasted Arthur Goldberg, Democratic candidate for governor of New York, saying "If he has any concern for the policemen who are being killed by militants almost every day, I have failed to read about it."

Unfortunately, Harrington and his contingent arrived just as Congress was adjourning for the election campaign. But Congress had passed the Nixon crime control package and the President was to sign it the next day with the order to Attorney General John N. Mitchell, "Here are the tools, now you do the job." That order can be repeated to the police, with the assurance that they have the public support to stop the revolution, anarchy and chaos they foresee.

Special Grand Juries

The Organized Crime Control Act of 1970 creates a radical new federal system of "special grand juries" with extraordinary powers. They are empowered not only to uncover criminal conduct and bring in traditional indictments, but they also can gather opinions, rumors and hearsay regarding misconduct and offer this in the form of a "report" to a federal judge.

This authority is an expression of society's angry determination to do something about stopping the crime wave that has become so prevalent and so noxious. One segment of the population at which it aimed is the officials who help criminals mult the public. As passed by the Senate, the new procedure would have applied to elected officials. The House struck out the word elected and substituted appointed.

While this weakens the bill, as it not only excludes members of Congress but elected state and municipal officials, it is a first step. Elected officials may be included later. None should be excluded if organized crime is to lose one of its strongest bases—collaboration with venal officials, whether appointed or elected.

"Take That . . . and That!"

David Lawrence Says Canadian Tragedy May Be Climax for Terrorism

WASHINGTON — Terrorism may have come to its climax in Canada — and maybe in other countries — with the slaying of Pierre Laporte.

The prompt action of the Canadian prime minister in mobilizing the military forces and virtually putting the nation under martial law for six months was overwhelmingly approved by a vote of the parliament. The practice of kidnapping public officials and holding them as hostages until certain prisoners are released or other demands met has been sweeping various parts of the world. But it is doubtful whether any single incident has received as much publicity as did the events in Canada over the last weekend.

People of every country must be asking themselves the question: Why do groups go to such extremes? Why do they defy authority and by their acts show complete indifference to the power of government to punish them? Why, also, are there so many younger as well as older exponents of various controversial issues talking about "revolution" and the use of force, while their own governments permissively ignore the threatening statements which result in incitement to disorder and crime?

Plainly, the sensible leaders in most communities have been depending upon methods of conciliation and debate and the opportunities afforded under a representative government to settle national and international problems. But the dissident organizations or groups have not been swayed. Some of them have been fanatical, and in numerous instances the threat to use force has been taken too lightly by the authorities.

Kidnappings and hijackings have intensified in recent months and finally a government was defied in Canada and a provincial official was executed. The whole world now is being told, in effect, that there is no answer to the problem except strict discipline and the application of military law.

Not only in Canada but in other countries today security measures have been increased so that public officials are under guard not only in their offices and while traveling but in their homes. This is an incalculable expense and an unprecedented example of what terrorism can do.

Slowly but surely, terroristic units in the United States and elsewhere will have to be convinced that no good purpose is served by the use of force and that reforms can be achieved through the normal processes of government if citizens are patient and restrained. The ways of communication are open to everybody, but the paths to disorder will have to be closed. The Reports which are now being issued about campus unrest in America, show clearly that plenty of drug addicts have been involved in the disturbances and that violence was not just a matter of gunfire by police when taunted by rock-throwing or sniping.

The public is gradually being informed that mobs not only can cause rioting and bombings but can produce a reign of terror. Systems of detection will have to be enlarged and improved. Undoubtedly, as the guilty are found and their participation in terroristic acts is proved in court, severe punishments will be administered. The Canadian public is going to insist upon it, and so will the people of this country with respect to crimes in the United States.

But the real tragedy is the fact that so many segments of the population listen to the extremists or are guided by those who feel that the end justifies the means or that the Constitution is what the mob says it is.

The Canadian Episode may be a turning point and awaken the people of America and other lands to the importance of bringing the facts to the attention of those who have been misled by militant individuals. For it must be impressed on those who have lost respect for authority and the principles of good behavior which they presumably were taught at some point in their lives that they cannot win their goals by terrorism. Governments everywhere now will feel the necessity of taking stern measures. The Canadian tragedy of last weekend will not be forgotten.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The magazines of America are dying. This, in my opinion, is a gigantic misjudgment on the part of the people. The well-edited magazine has its place in our field of information, just as the daily newspaper has and television too.

Life, which was one of the great weeklies, is no longer earning the money it should, because it is bedazzled with styles, trends, and material which can only be referred to as the "Jackie Onassis" set. The reviews of motion pictures and books are glib, sarcastic, and aimed more at cleverness than at truth.

Its big brother, Time, is not effeminate, but hunts the caustic phrase rather than the blunt truth. Esquire, which was once a sort of literary publication, now fights The Establishment as a means of beating Playboy. Playboy flourishes on pornographic photos and jokes. Its letters column, which has more appeal to readers than any one of its kind I've seen, consists mainly of miniature sexual problems.

My mail abounds with brochures depicting "tease" photos of men and women in bed, and this too depicts a trend on the part of people who, in a frenzy of political frustration, have now turned, like the ancient Romans, toward a "tomorrow we die" complex.

There is nothing wrong with sex, or God would not have invented it. What is wrong is an obsession with sex. It is as though, socially, we are left with no other subject. We tend to impart a freedom to our daughters which was forbidden to us. The Age of Permissiveness has gone so far that I feel like a throwback to Puritanism. The jokes our daughters and sons recite from high school are sick and sinful. However, when you close their mouths, you have lost their confidence and you are in the poverty position of not knowing what they are thinking.

In the late '40s and early '50s, I was an editor of Collier's Magazine and Liberty. Both sank under me because we were not abreast of the time. We were still publishing what we thought were intelligent profiles and articles in depth about current matters. Liberty hit rock bottom with 1,400,000 readers. It sounds like a lot, but we couldn't get a tire advertisement.

As I recall, we were down to a whiskey ad and, even at that, the printer in Chicago showed the bottle in the lower left-hand corner of a page, and its brownish contents somewhere up near the middle. Collier's, which owned The American Magazine and The Woman's Home Companion, died one at a time.

People no longer wanted informative articles and good fiction; they wanted sex. Once upon a long ago, a boy would appear at your front door offering four or six magazines at a cut-rate subscription price. He's gone. He's grown up. His son prefers to read some cheap toilet paper sheet which tells him who is making it with whom, in addition to photographs.

Either I'm getting old or I've lost my sense of balance. Sex has its place, a definite place in our reading. I'm one of its strongest advocates and I've never forgot a well-known man who once defined it as "the most fun without laughing there is of." But it isn't everything, either in magazines or books. It is an ingredient, like a gravy in the beef stew.

The last time I read a Surpreme Court decision on pornography, it said: prurient interest without a redeeming feature." If this is true, any writer can rap out 300 pages of dirt, toss St. John or St. Francis in a few paragraphs near the middle, and the book is legal and salable.

Police and sheriffs, and county prosecutors too, raid sex book shops for whatever publicity is in it, knowing that they are going to lose the case on appeal. If America had a stand-up law which said that if more than 50 per cent of the contents arouses "prurient" interest, we could protect our children from the filthiest aspects of sex and direct them to the wholesome side.

I don't want my children kept in sexual darkness until marriage. I want them to know what it is like, and I open the discussion saying, "It's fun, fun, fun," but I follow by explaining the price for it before marriage and who gets hurt. Freedom of the press is a desirable and important matter. It is guaranteed in the Constitution. But I have seen good magazines go down the drain because, in truth, they were good. Bad is good today. There is profit in it. All I can advise is that if cheap dirt comes into your house, mail it to a member of the United States Supreme Court. Let us redder them faces a little and advise them to pass it on to their children.

Jack Anderson Says U.S. Commander-in-Chief Loses His Automatic Assault Rifle

WASHINGTON — Treasury aides have confiscated a Chinese-made AK-47 automatic assault rifle, a trophy of the Cambodian invasion, from President Nixon. His possession of the weapon violated federal firearms laws.

Illegal weapons have also been seized from two White House aides, four Senators, four Representatives and three Governors. Criminal charges aren't likely to be preferred, however, against the President and his distinguished fellow law-breakers.

The Internal Revenue Service, which conducted the raids upon the 14 high officials, was most reluctant to talk about it. After debating for two days whether to answer our inquiries, the IRS finally acknowledged that the weapons had been "captured in Cambodian sanctuaries and presented to members of the President's fact-finding mission which went to the area in June."

The guns were personal gifts from U.S. and South Vietnamese military leaders and were brought illegally into the U.S. The IRS, however, tried to phrase this a little more delicately.

"The weapons were received by the U.S. civilian officials," explained the careful IRS statement to this column, "as representatives of the U.S. and, therefore, will be given to military museums as the property of the U.S. government."

The President's AK-47 and another enemy rifle in his possession "have been turned over to the Smithsonian Institution pending completion of a presidential library," said the IRS.

The other dignitaries who lost their semi-automatic Chinese carbines to the federal raiders were identified by the IRS as White House aides Herb Klein and Bryce Harlow; Senators Howard Cannon, D-Nev., Tom McIntyre, D-N.H., George Murphy, R-Calif., and John Tower, R-Tex.; Representatives Bill Bray, R-Ind., O.C. Fisher, D-Tex., Mel Price, D-Ill., and Bill Whitehurst, R-Va.; Governors John Love, R-Colo., Robert McNair, D-S.C., and Raymond Shafer, R-Pa.

The IRS arranged for military men, presumably weapons specialists, to pick up the illegal weapons on Capitol Hill. The servicemen brought along a special carrying case, so the Chinese guns could be lugged out of the Capitol building without alarming legislators and tourists.

One Congressman had already arranged a place on his wall for his carbine when he learned from the IRS that it was against the law for him to possess it. Most of the trophies, however, were confiscated from congressional closets. Senator McIntyre told this column he didn't want the Chinese carbine in the first place.

Federal firearms laws have barred machineguns from civilians since the gangland days of the 1930s. The import of these lethal, rapid-fire weapons is also banned without special licenses. None of the 14 dignitaries, of course, had been issued a license.

Courtroom Security

Chief Justice Warren Burger has alerted federal courts across the country to tighten security as a precaution against terrorist tactics.

He acted after Judge Harold J. Haley was abducted from his courtroom in San Rafael, Calif., by black militants, who decapitated him with a shotgun blast during a shootout with law officers. Police said the guns used by the militants had been purchased by communist glamor girl Angela Davis.

The Chief Justice has turned the problem of courtroom security over to Judge Clement Haynsworth, who remained on the Fifth Circuit Court after his appointment to the Supreme Court was rejected by the Senate.

What worries Burger and Haynsworth is that the courts are protected by federal marshals, who are often untrained political appointees.

In Baltimore, for instance, federal judges have appealed to Senator Charles "Mac" Mathias, R-Md., to stop the Republicans from replacing Marshal Frank Udoff with a political appointee. Udoff, a Democratic appointee, has done an excellent job of handling disruptions. Senator Mathias, therefore, telephoned the Justice Department and asked his fellow Republican, Deputy Attorney General Richard Kleindienst, to leave Udoff on the job.

In Chicago, the number of federal marshals at court proceedings have been doubled from 10 to 20, and all courtroom clerks have been armed. Other courts are carefully checking the identities of all visitors and searching anyone who looks suspicious.

Controversial Memo

This column reported on September 28 that the U.S. Information Service had "distributed a classified memorandum to its mission throughout the world pointing out that the Soviets cannot be trusted."

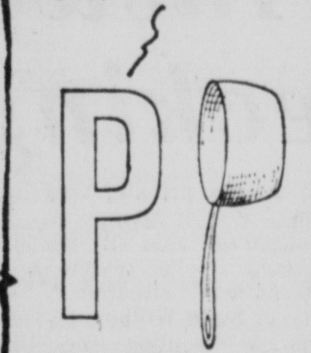

In another reference on October 2, we noted that the memo had equated the Middle East cease-fire violations with the Cuban missile crisis. "During the 1962 Cuban missile crisis," we reported, "high Soviet officials were caught in 119 outright lies."

Our stories have now been confirmed by the Washington Post, which also has revealed that the secret USIS memo lead Secretary of State Bill Rogers to scold USIS Chief Frank Shakespeare for making foreign policy on his own.

The inside fact, however, is that Shakespeare got his guidance directly from the White House. The controversial memo merely repeated what Shakespeare had been told by aides close to President Nixon.

GEE, PERKINS... YOU'VE REALLY GONE TO POT.

Making a Communist - Hater

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Bob Frishman's right arm is neither dead nor alive now. He calls it "this thing." The muscles still work, he can bend it fairly well and it still performs a few minor physical functions. But mostly the arm just hangs off his shoulder, good only to fill a sleeve.

Three years ago, the arm was normal. Bob Frishman used it to guide a jet fighter in bombing raids over North Vietnam. Then, in October of 1967, his plane was hit with a surface-to-air missile, his arm was shattered by a piece of shrapnel and he bailed out into a Communist prisoner of war camp.

He remembers the bone of his arm sticking out like a piece of white soap. There is no question he would have died except for enemy surgeons. But their operation was crude. For expedience sake, the elbow was just cut completely away.

Now the arm is misshapen and its future doubtful. When Frishman moves it, the disconnected bones protrude against the skin. When he lets it hang, the flesh looks like a pink balloon.

And to think, says Frishman, "it used to be my drinking arm."

Slight, tight grin.

"Good thing I'm ambidextrous."

Navy Lt. Bob Frishman's humor is forced. He is no longer a mirthful man. Twenty-two months in that North Vietnamese POW compound drained his cheer. And though he is one of nine U.S. prisoners whom the North Vietnamese have freed (he was released "for humanitarian reasons" in August, 1969) he seems to have found little joy this side of the bars. He is still 50 pounds below his preprison weight, his old uniform fits him like a bag and he is a newly serious man.

"I remember when I was first assigned to Vietnam. I didn't hate anybody. I just went over to do a job. But 22 months up there (in prison) changed me. I realize now what the Communists are. They're out to bury us in the ground."

He leans in close. Earnestly.

"Even my arm. They didn't fix it up for any human reason. They fixed it to keep me alive, because as a POW I was valuable to them. They could use me for propaganda or for bargaining. I wasn't a human being to them, only a commodity."

Coming from anyone else, this line of conversation might be dull to the point of meaninglessness. It does, after all, merely repeat old complaints about communism, complaints which seem to have gone out of fashion today. Yet Frishman gives the argument new color and, perhaps, new believability.

As he says, "I've heard both sides of the story now, from the anti-Communists and the pro-Communists." He has decided in favor of the anti.

In light of his experience, his decision is not really surprising. He has seen brutality as few ever do. Even in an era when the word oppression has become so politically loaded, his is a singular story of maddening cruelty.

He says he saw his captors use rifle butts to selectively break prisoners' bones. He says he saw men strung up to the ceiling by ropes for days on end. Prisoners he knew had their hands tied for months at a time. Others suffering wounds and fractures were dragged through jeering crowds. (U.S. officials estimate at least 18 POWs have been killed or allowed to die.)

But as other POWs have said, too, violence was not the worst cruelty.

"Isolation was the real torture. I'd rather have a beating every day than to be left alone. I remember they used to put me on a stool by myself. If I got up, somebody would hit me. If I fell asleep somebody would hit me. But nobody would talk to me. After a day, my legs would swell up. After a couple of days, I got dizzy. After about four days, I would just pass out."

Next to isolation, ignorance was the supreme torture. Not knowing what was going on. Not knowing anything but what the Communist allowed. "The day we stopped bombing the north," Frishman says, "I remember wondering what the hell happened — did we lose the war or what?"

And so there he was, for 22 months, reading only "special articles" from the New York Times, or speeches by Benjamin Spock or quotes from Sen. George McGovern. One day, he remembers, "somebody finally told me about what 'super hawk' Mendel Rivers was doing — trying to win the war. Hell, I never felt so good in my life. It was almost worth another chapter of Benjamin Spock."

And so here he is today, crippled inside and out. The hero of a no-longer heroic military service. The victim of a moralistic hiccup in history. The sufferer for a nation which does not honor his suffering. And he is bewildered because of it.

"What's going to happen?" he asks, tucking his withered arm against his side. But he knows the likely answer himself: No progress. The war will end, of course, and those still living will go home. But Lt. Frishman will hate the Communists the rest of his life — and the Communists will hate him.

Ellenville's One-Way

Editor, The Freeman:
Having been a somewhat estranged resident of Ellenville for the past several years, I have read, with great interest, the advances achieved and the setbacks suffered by the one-way street program. I had looked forward to the day when I would be able to return to my hometown and proceed along its streets at something more than a snail's pace; when I would be able to find parking lots somewhat centrally located in the business district; when I would not be forced to maneuver an obstacle course in an attempt to avoid double-parked cars and trucks; when the much too narrow streets in the business district would be made one-way; when parking would be permitted on only one side of the even narrower streets, if parking on such streets was to be permitted at all; when Market Street, between Center and Canal, would be turned into a "shoppers' mall"; when the lights on Main Street (Rte. 209) would be timed to avoid traffic congestion; and finally, when the police department would enforce all traffic violations, the standing as well as the moving.

Well, after much debate and lip chewing Ellenville adopted the much heralded one-way street concept. But what a time to give birth, what a time to add a new member to the town. Number one, village residents weren't fully sympathetic with the plan. The merchants (who finally had something to help bolster declining sales) as well as the shoppers (at least those who still did their shopping in Ellenville) were not fully convinced of the practicality of the program. Number two, the time for beginning the program was wrong. Would any of Ellenville's housewives clean their homes when they had a house full of company? Of course not. Would any of our town's merchants begin renovation of their establishments at the peak of their seasons? No again. The most logical time to begin house cleaning is when there are as few people in the house as possible, just as business renovation would most logically take place at the slack season. If the analogy between Ellenville and a business establishment can be made, it would seem that One-Way Streets were doomed from the outset.

Aside from being our community, with its prides and its problems, Ellenville is a big business. Each store is a division, each citizen an employee. We have a President (the Mayor), a Board of Directors (the Village Board), and a foreman (the Village Manager). We all contribute our fair share in making Ellenville a fine place to live and to work. Why would we change our business topsyturvy at the peak selling season?

I don't know the answer, but it would seem to me that someone in government ought to. We are all aware of how much more populous Ellenville becomes between Memorial Day and Labor Day; of how many more people do (or attempt to do) business here; of how many more cars our streets must contend with; and, how much more frequently trucks must make deliveries to keep our stores well stocked. We all know of the problems that the summer season brings, so why the change at the specific time? Don't get me wrong, Ellenville isn't totally to blame for the fiasco. New York State must take some burden for the blunder. How could we possibly evaluate a one-way street pattern if the lights on Main Street weren't synchronized? We couldn't. And New York State wouldn't take the necessary steps to retune the lights until we would guarantee the permanence of the one-way streets. We were, in effect, faced with a mutually exclusive situation that played its part in the destruction of the one-way street dream.

We are now bringing in a new police chief, an expert in traffic management. Isn't it a pity that there won't be much traffic to manage next summer when people don't return here to do business? Isn't it a pity that we didn't think for just a few months before instituting the plan, until after our town was back to normal, until after the summer season? Isn't it a pity that New York State doesn't care about Ellenville? Isn't it a pity that Ellenville is dying?

Demand Proof of Fluoridation

Editor, The Freeman:
The question rises—why are there some who want to force fluoridation on the American people? We have heard of no medical research or experiments on this, just a blunt statement that it is good for children's teeth. All we hear is about the comparison between the two cities, Newburgh-Kingston. There are many differences between these two cities. In order to make a fair comparison, shouldn't everything be equal to start.

Time, money and effort are spent in medical research on drugs and other medications. When something is known about it—its benefits and its adverse effects, a person has a choice of using it as he may need it, or stopping it if he cannot take that certain type of medication.

Why can't those who are so keen in getting fluoride in our water systems, take pills and use it as needed. Isn't it more reasonable to use it where it is needed than to fluoride the whole water system and then use it to wash cars, water lawns, flush toilets, wet down streets, do the family wash, put out fires or wherever water is used. Can you imagine the money there is involved in this scheme?

It makes one wonder who is in on the 'take,' who is subversive, who are misinformed or misled, or who are taken in by the statement 'for your children's teeth.' How much do they really care about the children?

When parents take their children to the doctor, they make sure they understand his orders on medications. They are concerned that they may give their children an overdose or that that particular medication could do them harm. Now, the proponents of fluoridation want us to take a drug, which we know very little about except that it is lethal and has been found to be harmful to the mind and body. It is impossible to evenly distribute this fluoride and, once it is in the body, it cannot be entirely eliminated.

Everyone, please use your common sense, ask questions and get answers (the truth), demand proof of its safety, study it thoroughly, and then act on the question of fluoridation. Don't risk your children's health or their future.

Very truly yours,
ANNA E. WITTHOFT

Editor, The Freeman:
I would like to comment on Vice President Agnew's recent remarks that Senator Charles Goodell has left the Republican Party. This is completely erroneous and I think it is the Vice President who has left the party—not Mr. Goodell.

How can Mr. Agnew still call himself a Republican when he attacks his Party's candidate for the Senate race in New York State? By attacking Goodell. Agnew is also attacking the New York State Republican Party (one of the most important in the nation), Governor Rockefeller (one of the most outstanding governors in the GOP), Representative Rogers C. B. Morton (the Republican National Committee Chairman), and Senator Hugh Scott (the Senate Minority Leader)—all of whom support Senator Goodell in his re-election bid. Are these the actions of a "loyal" Republican? Clearly, they are not and it is quite obvious that it is Mr. Agnew who has left the Republican Party and is trying to undermine it!

By trying to purge the liberal faction from the GOP, Mr. Agnew is working for a complete Democratic takeover. The Republican Party can not survive unless it can attract support from the left as well as the right and center. The 1964 Presidential election is a perfect example of what happens when the moderates and liberals leave the GOP—in one word, DISASTER!

Thus, if Mr. Agnew wants the Republican Party to expand and become the majority party, he would be well advised to support liberals like Senator Goodell instead of attacking them. Because the Republican Party will never survive without support from the left!

Sincerely yours,
WESLEY D. CLARK JR.

FIRST TIME—Ulster County Legislator Peter J. Savago notes approval of system of payroll deductions of county employees for this year's Chest drive. Flanking him are (L) Richard W. Vendettuoli and Anthony Triulzi of the official Chest family. (Mickey Mathis photo)

County Okays Chest Plan

KINGSTON as part of their method of donating to the Community Chest. It was announced today by Peter J. Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislature, that the county has approved a system of payroll deductions for all county employees in making their donation to the Ulster County Community Chest. Chairman Savago indicated that this was the first year that such a payroll system was possible for the more than 600 employees of the county, and he felt that it would be beneficial to both the employees in making their donations, and the Community Chest since it would make it far easier for people to give a larger gift if the deduction was given over a period of time rather than all at once.

The general chairman for this year's Ulster County Community Chest drive, Anthony Triulzi, and the Community Chest's executive director, Richard W. Vendettuoli, were both on hand at the offices of the Ulster County Legislature when Chairman Savago became the first county official to sign up under the new payroll deduction plan. Triulzi welcomed the county employees to the ever-growing family of businesses and institutions throughout the area which have adopted payroll deduction.

The Florida Alligator, the school newspaper, reported the university police force has also ordered a $1,500 film camera to be used "in the event of demonstrations."

The wigs, according to William Elmore, vice president for business affairs, will not be used on campus but were purchased for a special drug unit.

Britts Theft Probed, Orange Man Arrested

KINGSTON A 27-year-old Orange County man was taken into custody in Newburgh Monday by detectives as the result of a continued investigation of the alleged theft of merchandise at Britts store in the Kingston Shopping Plaza.

Last Friday night, security officers at the store arrested a man charged with petit larceny involving the reported theft of a pants and vest combination valued at $36. A woman who said she was the man's wife also was booked for larceny.

A disturbance followed the arrests and after the man produced identification papers—a driver's license—he was booked as Rudolph Wright, 24, of Campbell Hall. The woman was booked as Joyce Wright.

On Saturday, neither of the two appeared in City Court and detectives began an investigation that led to Orange County. Police said they arrested a man identified by authorities as William T. Brown, who gave his address as 32 South Miller Street, Newburgh.

Authorities said Brown had in his possession a driver's license issued to Rudolph Wright. The certificate had been stolen sometime ago with Wright's wallet, a detective said.

Brown, who police said had posed as Wright at the time of his arrest Friday night, allegedly became abusive when arrested in Newburgh. He was charged with harassment and criminal possession of stolen property third degree—involving Wright's driver's license.

Brown was scheduled to appear in City Court.

A detective said the identity of the woman arrested Friday is not known. The charges originally lodged against Wright will be dismissed police said because he was not involved in the alleged theft at Britts.

A Rare Admission... Even From Politico

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — In as candid a campaign statement as has been heard in a long while, U.S. Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. disclosed two weeks before the May primary that he had won his battle against alcoholism.

"I drank too much. I don't drink any more, and I feel great," he said on May 20, noting that he had not touched alcohol for the past 18 months.

The man who might have benefited most from the admission, GOP hopeful Nelson G. Gross, ruled the alcoholism issue off limits and it has hardly been mentioned since then.

Williams' acknowledgment recalled the announcement of U.S. Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, who revealed he also had gotten over a similar drinking bout.

In retrospect, noting Williams' sizeable margin of victory in the primary, it seeks the disclosure won him as much sympathy as antipathy.

In any case Williams seems ahead and likely to stay there.

Yet Gross, 38, the former managed the Nixon presidential campaign in New Jersey two years ago and the gubernatorial victory of William T. Cahill last year, is waging a strong fight.

Before the primary, pundits predicted that Williams, 50, would be in the race of his life.

Now those predictions seem somewhat out of place.

Gross played to the liberals during the pre-primary struggle, accenting his opposition to Vietnam and sounding as if he might have voted against G. Harold Carswell for the U.S. Supreme Court.

As the summer wore on, Gross sought to reverse the damage his leftist leanings were doing with conservatives in the New Jersey GOP.

So he sounded more and more like a Nixon Republican.

The Gross campaign, both in strategy and presentation of the issues, seemed to reflect a disorganization which observers had been noticing all along within the candidate's camp.

As for Williams, he was content to rattle his sabre not at Gross but at Nixon for failing to restore the economy or move American troops out of Vietnam swiftly enough.

Surgery for Tots — Puppets Helpful

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Puppets usually "perform" on the stage, in small cubicles at state fairs, and on television but the University of California, San Francisco Medical Center, uses them for pediatric therapy.

The new program helps to ease young patients' fears and tensions. It's called "Puppet Therapy."

Under the guidance of Judy, Mrs. William L. Hinrichs, the program focuses on youngsters being prepared for cardiac surgery and may soon be expanded to serve all children facing other types surgery.

She started the program during her volunteer service days in a Chicago hospital.

"The idea is to prepare youngsters for what happens in cardiac catheterization," she explained, "when he or she should be spending two hours in a strange room, hearing strange noises and seeing only strangers. And that's scary."

Mrs. Hinrichs and Mrs. Cecil Free are assigned to the program on a call basis.

"I just live a few minutes from the hospital," said Mrs. Hinrichs, "and when they need me, they telephone me and I come in."

She works with children from four years of age and up after consultation with doctors and nurses. The puppets are designed and made by Mrs. Hinrichs to represent a doctor, a nurse and two children. The doctor wears a green surgical gown and mask to help clue the child on what to expect during the hospital stay.

Each puppet gets the name of the child patient. She tells the youngster that "Suzie, the puppet will have an operation like yours."

Later in the interview the child plays himself and is told what to expect: blood pressure readings, blood tests, the shot before going upstairs on a rolling cart, the elevator, the hall outside the operating room, anesthesia and a stethoscope. Then the child is told where he'll be taken after the operation, perhaps to an intensive care unit or the recovery room.

DR. JANE HODGSON
(UPI Telephoto)

Gynecologist Defies Law

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Dr. Jane Hodgson is a pleasant-faced woman of 55, the mother of two daughters, a gynecologist, and an abortionist.

Recently, in deliberate and public defiance of Minnesota's 19th Century law against such an act, she performed an abortion upon a 23-year-old housewife.

The Law of Minnesota, as does the law of most other states, stipulates that an abortion can be performed only in order to save the life of the mother.

Dr. Hodgson performed her abortion because she believed there was strong evidence that her patient had contracted measles early in pregnancy and her baby was therefore likely to be deformed.

If she is convicted, Dr. Hodgson could lose her medical license and go to jail for up to four years. She knew that before she performed the abortion. Her hope is that her case will go to the Minnesota Supreme Court and that the state's antiabortion law then will be declared unconstitutional.

She thought that being prosecuted for preventing the birth of a possibly deformed child "would illustrate the handicap we work under." In her particular case, she said, "very few people can argue with the humanity of it."

Dr. Hodgson has been practicing medicine for 22 years. She has had more than ample opportunity to observe the results of the common run of criminal abortions — those performed by untrained, uncaring hands, hurriedly, in back rooms.

"You see enough of them that have been to abortionists and you know it's going on, you can't ignore it," she said in a recent interview. "One who came to the office here a week ago was in such condition. I had to drop everything to take her to a hospital. She was okay after transfusions, but we don't know if she'll be sterile."

Desperate Women

This particular woman was a divorcee, Dr. Hodgson said, who already has a child. She had made a weekend trip to an out of town abortionist.

Such desperate women come to her "almost daily," she said, probably because she is the only woman gynecologist in St. Paul.

It is impossible, she said, to estimate the number of women who undergo illegal abortions because "these girls don't want to be counted—they don't want to come forward and argue their case."

The women with whom she most sympathizes include unmarried women. "Married women for whom it's a real tragedy," and young girls.

Dr. Hodgson spoke of "contraceptive failures." She said there is no perfect method to prevent contraception, and that many women who faithfully use various methods get pregnant. "So many people aren't tolerant," she said. "They don't realize how fertile some women are."

According to Dr. Hodgson's figures, 52 girls in Minnesota 14 years or younger delivered babies in 1969. "No 14-year-old girl is responsible," she said. "I delivered a 15-year-old girl not long ago. That is enough reason (to fight the law) alone."

Own Argument

"If any of these lawmakers had a 14-year-old daughter who was pregnant, you can be sure that he wouldn't want her to go through with it."

As for arguments that abortion is the taking of a life, Dr. Hodgson said:

"It's a relative thing. The life and the happiness of that mother and her family and the consequences of that child if it's allowed to go to term," compared with the "nebulous rights of the fetus per se."

"If we'll improve the quality of life that's already here, that's the right thing to do," she said.

Promiscuity Excluded

"When you weigh the consequences of an unwanted child, an abused child, with the destruction of an embryo, there's no comparison of relative rights."

"I'm not condoning sexual promiscuity. That's beside the point. I don't think the abortion law has any effect on sexual promiscuity."

"Actually, to strengthen the morals of society you have to allow freedom. By trying to legislate all the activities, you will weaken the moral structure of a society rather than strengthen it."

"I don't think any woman is going to want an abortion or use that as a contraception. It's not a pleasant thing that any woman will seek out."

Dr. Hodgson said she would not abort every woman who asked for the operation if it were legal.

But she believes "most of the time it's a woman's right to make a decision. I might try to advise a lot of them to take different action."

Iron Age Relic

IPSWICH, England (UPI)—Insurance salesman Peter Gorham found what local archeologists said was an Iron Age relic in his garden Monday.

The gold torc or necklet was found less than 100 yards from where five similar Iron Age torcs were unearthed two years ago. The British Museum paid construction worker Malcom Tricker $108,000 for those relics and said they dated from 45 B.C.

Local Recovery Group To Mark Anniversary

KINGSTON These groups meet on a regular weekly basis, providing people with a systematic method of self-help. Self-help is also an integral part of the operation, management, support and control of the entire Recovery organization. Patients and former patients trained in the method serve in the many positions required to maintain the organization and make it available to all who need it.

Recovery is non-sectarian. People of all faiths meet together in the social rooms of synagogues, churches and other suitable places in the community. Membership in Recovery is composed of a varied group. Well over 10,000 people from all walks of life, men, women, attend the weekly panel meetings in various cities and towns. There is never a charge for attending these meetings, there is simply a free will offering. But those who regularly attend usually become paid members.

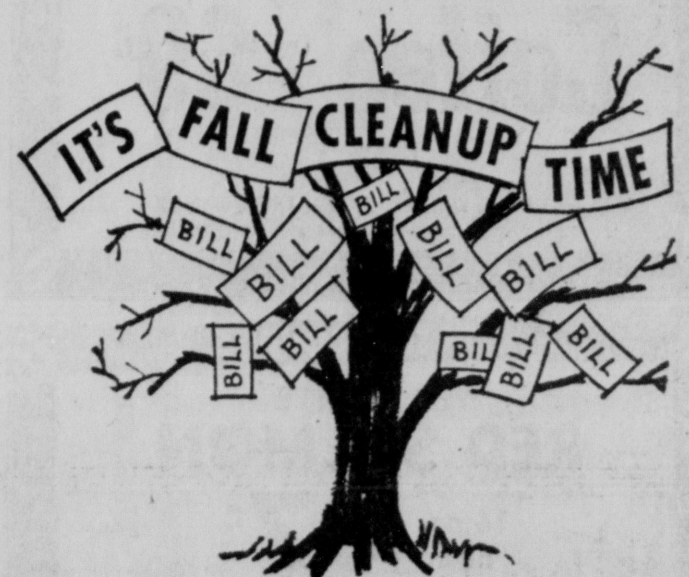

Further information may be obtained by attendance at the local meeting.

Gals in State Police Work Favored by SP Super

By JOHN L. CONSIDINE
ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI)—Another male stronghold appears headed for 'liberation.'

For 53 years, law enforcement by New York state police has been an all-male effort. But times are changing, and State
Police Superintendent William E. Kirwan says he feels "very good" about Governor Rockefeller's plan, announced Thursday, to open the organization's investigative ranks to women.

During an interview with United Press International, Kirwan said if present plans develop as anticipated, "We could start recruiting right after April of next year or the termination of the (legislative) session."

There are currently some women among the agency's 3, 400 employees, but all are in clerical or administrative posts.
The superintendent said his counsel is presently researching the executive law to determine whether present provisions are adequate for a women's group in the state police.

Kirwan said he "very definitely" sees a big role for women in state police work.

"I can't give you the exact numbers," Kirwan said when asked about the size of the proposed unit. "It'll be a modest start."

"When we do hire them, they will be given the same training course as our male troopers," he explained. "They will undergo exactly the same (training)
... with the exception of the mixed physical education: class room studies, fire arms, self defense tactics, knowledge of the penal law and everything else."

Kirwan said the lady troopers would have exactly the same powers of arrest as male troopers.

Asked whether he considered the governor's plan unusual,

Kirwan said:

"Yes and no. It's a progressive step in New York State.
Massachusetts, Connecticut and Michigan do have women officers in their state police setup."

Kirwan said the women's unit would be a separate operation, in that a woman would administer the group.

"These people would be assigned to the field in the various parts of the state to help the BCI (Bureau of Criminal Investigation) in their operations,"

A Staid Old Institution May Just Never Be the Same

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Tullah Hanley, who may be the world's richest ex-belly dancer, threw a party at San Francisco's De Young Museum of Art Tuesday night and that staid old institution may never be the same.

The party, given to commemorate Mrs. Hanley's gift of $3 million worth of her late husband's art collection, featured naked art students in body paint, belly dancers from North Beach topless nightclubs, magicians, puppeteers, fire eaters, Indian dancers and rock bands.

On the walls around this Dionysian merrymaking were displayed Mrs. Hanley's gifts: the works of Gauguin, Matisse, Manet, Boucher, Renior, Chagall and Dufy.

But the main attraction for the 5,000 invited guests was Tullah herself, the merry widow of the millionaire art collector Edward Hanley.

Dancing in one of the five see-through outfits she wore during the course of the evening, Tullah brought a flush to the faces of many of the matronly ladies of the De Young Museum Society.

"Don't be shocked, baby," she told a reporter. "I am also on exhibit. I was the only ostentatious thing Ed ever owned ... his most treasured acquisition, part of his collection." Tullah, 46, used to perform semi-nude Egyptian "interpretative dancing" in Europe and the United States before meeting and marrying Hanley 21 years ago. She said she maintains her beauty with exercise, careful eating, body oil and ground fruit and vegetable facials.

"My only fashion idea," she said, "is if you have nothing to hide, show it; if you have nothing to show, hide it."

Her personal typewritten "Tullah notes" on the wall beside her favorite paintings showed a thorough knowledge of the works in the collection.

The first time she was exposed to art, Tullah explained, was when she quit school at 14 in her native Hungary and got a job as a nude model in Budapest.

She gave part of her husband's art collection to San Francisco, she said, because "everybody here has treated me so marvelously, without anybody knowing there could be a gift."

Another big portion of the collection will go to Denver for similar reasons, she said. Tuesday night's party was "unlike anything we've ever seen," observed Museum Director Ian White, who got into the spirit of Tullah's bash by donning the costume of the cowardly lion from the "Wizard of Oz."

Spirits were dispensed from a dozen bars set up amid the impressionistic masterpieces. Amplified music rattled the windows of the venerable old building.

The guests, some in white ties and tails, others costumed or merely painted, didn't want to leave. Museum security guards finally cleared the building an hour and a half after the party was scheduled to end.

Another Increase In Cost of Living

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The cost of living for Americans registered an increase of one-half of one per cent in September, the government reported today. Price rises occurred over a broad range of categories including such essentials as clothing and shelter. The increase was more than double the rate in August when the Nixon administration said a 0.2 per cent rise was evidence that its anti-inflation drive was succeeding.

The report of the 0.5 per cent jump was considered bad news by administration economists—especially coming as it did less than two weeks before the congressional elections.

The September rise, computed after seasonal adjustments, compared with lower increases for three consecutive months following a steady increase ranging between 0.4 per cent and 0.6 per cent earlier in the year.

The seasonally adjusted increases were 0.3 per cent in both June and July before the 0.2 per cent drop in August.

The September increase pushed the index to 136.6, meaning that goods and services which cost $10 dollars in 1957-59 cost $13.66 in September.

Food prices declined 0.1 per cent in September, but this was smaller than usual for that month, particularly for fresh fruit and vegetables which went down 3 per cent.

BERNADETTE OUT—Bernadette Devlin, Britain's youngest member of Parliament, was released from prison today after serving four months of a six-month sentence for helping incite the 1969 riots in Londonderry. Officials said the 23-year-old civil rights campaigner had earned two months remission of sentence for good behavior (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Reports Pygmies
LIMA, Peru (UPI)—A book published by the Roman Catholic Church vicariate in Puerto Maldonado, Peru, Monday reported the existence of a tribe of jungle pygmies only 39 inches high. The book, "Risen From the Jungle," says the Pygmies, known as the Yushes, live along the banks at the mouth of the Curanja River in the border area between Peru, Brazil and Bolivia. They are one of 20 tribes in the region, including the Hurayos who are more than six feet in height and have blue eyes, the book said.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened higher in moderate turnover today.

Shortly after the opening, the Dow Jones industrial average of 30 selected blue chips was up 0.14 to 758.83. Of the 334 issues traded, 149 advanced, and 72 declined.

Teledyne opened 3/4 higher at 20 1/2, while Kennecott Copper gained 1/4 to 40 1/2. American Telephone, however, dipped 1/4 to 43 1/2, with Corning Glass down 1 to 16 1/4.

Allied Chemical rose 1/4 to 18 1/2 in its group, while American Airlines showed a steady tone in its group. It opened unchanged at 19 1/2.

Among the electronics, Honeywell dipped 5/8 to 82 1/2 on a block of 11,700 shares. Sperry Rand gave up 1/4 to 25 1/2, but General Electric added 1/4 to 84 1/2, and Zenith was 1/2 higher at 31 1/2. University Computing gained 1/4 to 29 1/2, while Memorex held unchanged at 8 1/2.

In the oils, Marathon Oil rose 1/4 to 30 1/2, with Atlantic Richfield up a similar amount to 56 1/2. Texaco and Standard Oil of Ohio gained 1/4 each to 32 and 71 1/2, respectively.

General Motors opened unchanged at 71 1/2 on a block of 10,000 shares. Chrysler dipped 1/4 to 24 1/2.

Post Expected Back on Stands This Thursday

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Post is expected back on the stands Thursday after members of the American Newspaper Guild voted to accept a contract with the paper and end a 17-day strike. The overwhelming voice-vote approval of the agreement, including a 41.69 per cent wage boost over three years, came at a Tuesday night meeting. The paper has been shut down since the guild struck Oct. 6.

The contract does not include the establishment of a pension fund for retiring guild members, a point which had been a key demand at the beginning of the strike and a major stumbling block in talks.

The paper formerly gave retiring editorial employees their accumulated severance pay in one lump sum, but the new agreement gives guild members the option of having the Post invest the sum in an annuity fund to be paid off over a number of years.

The contract follows the same general pattern of those offered to craft unions at the city's three newspapers since their contracts expired March 30.

The strike idled some 1,300 employees, 439 of them guild members, at the city's only afternoon daily.

My Lai Trial Put Off Until Thursday Noon

FT. HOOD, Tex. (AP)—Resumption of the court-martial of S. Sgt. David Mitchell in the My Lai incident was postponed today until 12:30 p.m. Thursday because the defense was unable to get its witnesses lined up on short notice after the Army suddenly rested its case Tuesday.

Ossie Brown, Mitchell's lawyer, said he told Col. George R. Robinson, military judge, he needed until at least Thursday to set up presentation of Mitchell's case. Brown has subpoenaed 48 witnesses.

Brown said Robinson agreed to the postponement. The judge said Tuesday he wanted the defense to begin its case this afternoon if possible.

Brown said Tuesday he was "really shocked" when the Army rested after calling only three witnesses.

Brown said he does not know if he will call Mitchell to the stand.

Sheriff's Men Probe Thefts

ROSENDALE
Deputy sheriffs continued investigation today of a complaint reporting the theft of batteries from four school buses owned by the Arthur F. Mulligan, Inc., and the cutting of cables in the vehicles.

Sergeant Raymond Davis said the theft and damage to the wiring was discovered Monday morning and reported to Deputy Sheriff Richard Malone who is investigating.

A spokesman for Mulligan's said the buses involved were replaced and there was no interruption in the service of transportation for students.

Horticulture Chairman Miss Ziegler reported on several methods to avoid early frost damage in the garden. Plant on sloping ground rather than in hollows, and do not plant near a wall where colder air is more likely to settle. Plastic sheeting used to cover plants must be removed before the heat from the sun damages plants.

Nirenberg Answers DA's Office

KINGSTON doing a better job with crime than a few other counties. Alex J. Nirenberg, candidate for Ulster County District Attorney, today answered his opponent's position that they are pushers of Ulster County. They have now released so-called figures of comparison with tiny upstate counties. These are nonexistent figures and similar to the 'soap-suds' ads that promise '20 percent purer' but never say what it is 20 percent purer than," Nirenberg stated. "But they continue to ignore the documented data — their own figures — that show that my opponent is responsible for only five convictions as charged out of 108 indictments for drug pushing in the last six years," he continued.

"I have named by name each person convicted. I have published the entire list of Grand Jury indictments — item by item. I have asked them to point out one single discrepancy. The only answer the public gets is silence and then these smoke screens," the noted criminal lawyer stated.

"Although crime is skyrocketing in Ulster County, my opponent has been indicting and prosecuting less each year. They duck this point also with silence," continued the former judge.

Nirenberg continued, "I respect the present district attorney as a person and as a lawyer. But he well knows that while he conducts his large law practice in New Paltz, he must support his assistant or commit political suicide, and speaking of New Paltz, Main Street, where his office is, is now known nationally as the biggest 'drug street' in the country."

"Fully aware of all this, my opponent (Francis J. Vogt), continues to make deals with drug pushers because he thinks he has thousands of automatic votes. However, I respect the intelligence of the voters. I will put a stop to the indiscriminate deals with drug pushers of Ulster County. The people in the streets of Ulster County must be protected," Nirenberg concluded.

ILGWU Endorses Lenefsky

KINGSTON The International Ladies Garment Workers Union today endorsed Democratic-Liberal candidate David Lenefsky for the New York State Senate seat from Ulster and Dutchess Counties. It was announced by Julius Sippen, manager of Locals 259 and 268 in Kingston and Poughkeepsie.

"We heartily endorse the candidacy of David Lenefsky for State Senator. We feel he's done his homework. He understands the problems of the people of this district. He has feeling and compassion for the wage earner, the small home owner, the consumer, the neglected and forgotten people of Ulster and Dutchess. We admire the zeal with which Lenefsky is conducting his campaign."

"What about his opponent? Sen. Jay P. Rolison has backed every measure in the State legislature that sought to place the burden of taxation upon the individual least able to carry that burden. He voted to increase the sales tax. He voted to place harsh restrictions upon ingness to tackle the issues. In such a man. We urge his election. David Lenefsky is the

Esopus GOP Candidate Raps Dem Opponent

ESOPUS Edward S. Wiltzie, Republican candidate for the office of Esopus town councilman, denounced as "misleading and irresponsible," his Democratic opponent Richard Sickler's charges that the present councilmen have a "Public Be Damned" attitude.

Wiltzie said that this type of statement reflected the inexperience, immaturity and total lack of understanding of the duties and responsibilities of a town councilman.

He noted, that since his appointment in June, as Councilman, he has actively participated, both independently and in conjunction with other members of the town board, in the development and improvement of numerous town ordinances and programs.

"These efforts, on the part of the current members of the Town Board," Wiltzie stated, "have and will continue to result in the adoption of 'town legislation' designed to safeguard and advance the rights and interests of Esopus citizens."

"Sickler, even with his limited knowledge of the functions of town government," Wiltzie said, "should recognize that the councilmen, (while part of the Town Board) do not constitute a majority and that his irresponsible and misleading statements reflects upon the integrity of every member of the Town Board."

Coroner Duties Detailed

KINGSTON Calling the post of coroner in Ulster County "one of the most misunderstood of the elective offices," Democratic-Liberal candidate Charles "Mike" Johnson explained that the position is an investigative one that requires administrative and coordinating abilities.

In a press release issued this week, Johnson, a senior staff adjuster for a major insurance company, stated that the duties of the coroner are to coordinate the various agency's reports involved in an unattended death and "from these make one report called the coroner's report."

Johnson said that "while many persons believe the coroner performs autopsies, it is the coroner's duty to appoint a coroner's physician to perform them."

The candidate states that his experience as a claims investigator and his background in administrative and coordinating aspects of claims investigation qualifies him for the job of coroner. He favors putting the post of coroner back in the hands of professionally trained administrators.

A member of the Board of Directors of American Red Cross, Johnson is also active in other local organizations.

State's 29th District...Incumbent Stratton Against Incumbent Button

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI)—New York's 29th is the only congressional district in the nation where an incumbent is challenging an incumbent in the 1970 elections.

The state's 41 districts were reapportioned by the legislature this year and as a result of the new lines, the battle between Republican Daniel Button and Democrat Samuel Stratton gained nationwide attention by political leaders of both parties. One will lose.

The district, which takes in much of the city of Albany, was once known as the 32nd. Later, reapportionment made it the 30th and then the 29th. The two biggest counties in the district—Albany and Schenectady—are usually as different politically as the candidates themselves.

Only a few years back, Democrats considered the district a "safe" area. And, in 1964, Republicans began to have the same feelings. Now it appears to be a toss-up.

During the Democratic "safe" days, Leo W. O'Brien, noted political writer and commentator, held sway. He was first elected in 1952 by a 14,500 vote majority in face of the Eisenhower presidential sweep of that year.

From then on, O'Brien picked up speed. He was re-elected by 22,500 and then for the next three times by 40,000. His last trip to the polls gave him an unprecedented 88,000 margin over his Republican opponent. But that was O'Brien.

O'Brien, who not only had the backing of Democratic leaders but many Republicans as well, retired four years ago. Button, a newspaper editor, then ran on the Republican ticket and scored an upset.

Button had broken a long string of Democratic victories in the district and the GOP considered the 29th "safe." And, the 1970 Republican-controlled legislature decided to strengthen their claims by chopping off a large block of what Democrats claim were traditionally their votes.

In the overall redistricting plan, however, the legislature wiped out the district represented by Stratton. It was not new to Stratton, who had been shuffled out of a district by reapportionment before. So he decided to take on Button.

Stratton's decision was based primarily on the fact that he had been successful in beating the Schenectady Republican organization. He was elected mayor of the city and first went to Congress from that area.

With Button and Stratton, the war issue is clear-cut. Stratton supports President Nixon's policies on Vietnam and Button wants to fix a date for withdrawal of troops.

Both candidates are similar campaigners. They are leaving no stones unturned, speaking whenever they get a chance, regardless of the size of the audience. And they are engaged in a series of debates.

The format of their debates are simple and to the point. Each candidate has opening remarks for 5-7 minutes and then they are allowed a like amount of time for a rebuttal. The rebuttals are followed by questions from the audience.

During a recent debate, each man gave the other an opportunity to speak his piece without interruption, although at times during the rebuttals or the question and answer periods the exchange between the two men became rough.

Changing from the war, the candidates got on the state of the national economy. Button criticized defense spending as too much. He accused the military of spending money that could be used for other programs such as aid to cities and education.

The House Armed Services Committee, of which Stratton is a member, came under fire from Button. He said the group voted to give the Navy $1 billion it did not request.

Stratton advocated expansion of the money supply to stop inflation through such means as reduced interest rates; lower business taxation, at least temporarily, and the imposition of temporary wage and price controls for a six months period.

Man Found Strangled, Led Algerian Revolution

BONN (UPI) — Belkacem Krim, 48, one of nine men who launched the Algerian revolution against France in 1954, was found strangled in his Frankfurt hotel room Tuesday night. The West German Interior Ministry ordered an investigation.

A chambermaid found the body while cleaning rooms at the 21-story Intercontinental Hotel in Frankfurt. Police said he had been strangled, possibly on Sunday.

Krim, once a colonel in the Algerian Liberation Army, had been checked in Sunday with three men who identified themselves as Moroccans. Police said they disappeared without paying their bill. Police said Krim's body was on a bed in a four-room suite. He was fully dressed. Interior Minister Hans-Deitrich Genscher ordered the case turned over to the Bonn-based security branch of the Federal Criminal Police.

Krim was the second of the original nine leaders of the Algerian uprising to be slain in the past 20 months. Mohamed Khider was killed in Madrid in January, 1969.

WOODSTOCK Michael Schovel, a tree surgeon of Saugerties, was the guest speaker at another session at the home of Mrs. Richard Muller in Woodstock. Schovel, who is Saugerties supervisor, gave a talk on the maintenance of trees and discussed how to fertilize, how to transplant, how to repair a tree cavity and how to prune trees. Also at this meeting an election of officers was held as follows: President, Mrs. Jerry Ettinger; first vice president, Mrs. David Silver; second vice president, Mrs. Alfred Bruckner; recording secretary, Mrs. Dean Brecke; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Norman Fowler; and treasurer, Mrs. Anthony Coscarella. Christmas decoration workshops will take the place of the November meeting. The next regular meeting of the ZAHCA Garden Club will be the first Wednesday in February 1971. Time and place will be announced later. Some highlights of next year's activities are wildflower slides, spring bulbs, and flower arranging.

Blood Bank Donors Needed

WOODSTOCK The community blood bank conducted by the Town of Woodstock Public Health Committee will hold a drawing to replenish its supply from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 5 at the Dutch Reformed Church on the Village Green. The Woodstock blood bank is solely for the use of town residents. The committee has announced that so many Woodstock residents have been aided by the project that the supply is low. All persons in good health between 18 through 59 may donate blood. No one who has had yellow jaundice may serve as a donor. Potential donors with colds and similar infections are temporarily rejected. Fatty foods and alcoholic beverages should not be taken for at least four hours prior to giving blood. Further information is available by calling Mrs. Robert Breitenstein, chairman, or Mrs. Arthur Jones, president. Technicians from the Kingston Laboratory and a medical doctor will be in attendance. A free dinner is served to each donor.

Library Story Hour Has Openings

WOODSTOCK The Woodstock Library Story Hour held Wednesday mornings at ten for pre-schoolers has been very successful. Some innovations have been made. There are a variety of readers as mothers are taking part in doing some of the reading. Also, children may now take books from the library. Mrs. Timothy Moore, who is in charge of the group, suggests that children be brought to the library Wednesday mornings to participate in an enjoyable hour as there is room for a few more. Special 'Wizard of Oz' Matinees at Mayfair

For Robert A. Battaglia, city manager of the Walter Reade theatres in Kingston, there is a special nostalgia connected with his announcement that Special Children's Matinee performances of the original "Wizard of Oz" will be presented here this weekend.

As every child of every age knows, "Wizard of Oz" stars a youthful Judy Garland, Bert Lahr, Frank Morgan, Ray Bolger and Jack Haley. An unquestioned classic in the movie industry, it has been the perennial favorite of several generations of youngsters.

In presenting the film with pride, Battaglia recalled this week that one of the pleasant highlights of his career was getting to know the late Judy Garland during her record breaking engagements at the Palace Theatre on New York's Broadway. By that time, she had added to her reputation as Dorothy in "Oz" and was established as a living legend. Later, Battaglia renewed his friendship with the singer-actress at a dinner in her honor after a premiere showing of "Gay Purr-ee," the animated film to which she contributed her heralded voice.

Loved Her Public

Says Battaglia, "Everyone who knew her loved her. She had nothing but sincerity, loyalty and love for her public. Once accompanied her on a three-day tour and she loved every minute of the crowds and pressures."

Reminiscing, he recalls that at one theater, 2,600 people swamped the lobby through which the singer and her touring companions made their entrance. "It was 10 minutes before the crowds could be cleared so we could move down the aisle to the stage," he said, "but the tears in her eyes were tears of joy—not fear."

He recalls that, backstage, she grabbed his hand in hers; told him she was "so grateful" for such demonstrations of proof that she was "truly loved" by her fans.

A Top Favorite

Battaglia, whose career has brought him into contact with many stars, counts Judy Garland as one of his top favorites. Other personalities he admires include Bette Davis, Joan Crawford of "Oz." The film will play two days only, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 24 and 25, at the Karloff and Lillian Gish, all of day, Oct. 24 and 25, at the whom have impressed him Mayfair Theater here. Two greatly in personal encounters, shows are slated each day, with For Kingston area youngsters, presentations at 1:30 and 3:30 then, a chance to see again or p.m. Saturday and at 2 and 4 for the first time "The Wizard p.m. Sunday.

JUDY GARLAND, in New York City for a banquet in her honor after a premiere showing of "Gay Purr-ee," poses with Robert A. Battaglia, then associated with RKO and now city manager of the Walter Reade theatres here in Kingston. Miss Garland's most beloved film, the original "Wizard of Oz," has been booked by Battaglia for special matinee showings locally this weekend at the Mayfair.

TWA Pickets Are Withdrawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trans World Airlines and the Transport Workers Union reached an agreement in principal early today, the National Mediation Board announced.

Pickets were withdrawn at major airports around the country at 7:00 a.m. EDT, two hours after the settlement was agreed upon.

Francis A. O'Neill, mediator at the talks, said the agreement was subject to ratification by striking stewardesses and pursers. Final language of the pact would be written up during the day, he said.

Exact terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

The strike began when talks bogged down with an impasse shortly after a strike deadline Tuesday morning at 12:01 a.m.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

KHS Will Participate in 1970-71 Search For American Homemaker of Tomorrow

Kingston High School will again this year take part in the 1970-71 Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow. This program, now in its 17th year, offers high school senior girls an opportunity to earn college scholarships of $500 to $5,000.

The scholarship competition is based on an examination covering a broad area of subjects related to homemaking. The senior girl with the highest test score in each school will be named local Homemaker of Tomorrow. She will receive a silver charm, and her paper will be entered in state-level judging. The highest ranking Homemaker of Tomorrow in each state will be awarded a $1,500 college scholarship and an expense-paid educational tour of historic shrines in the eastern United States for herself and a school advisor. Her school will receive a complete set of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. In addition, the second-ranking student in each state will receive a $500 college scholarship.

From the top scholarship winners, one student will be chosen as the All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow. She will be awarded a $5,000 scholarship; three national runners-up will earn scholarships of $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively.

The final date for school enrollment is November 2, 1970. The exam will be administered on December 1, 1970 in the high school. Any senior girl interested may sign up in the high school guidance office. For any additional information concerning the contest, contact Mrs. Miriam Erickson in the high school guidance office of Miss Murial Ferraro, Home Economics Supervisor. The exam is on the advisory list of national contests and activities of the National Association of Secondary-School Principals, and offers a valuable learning experience to every girl who takes it.

Woodstock Garden Club Events

Woodstock Garden Club members were reminded of upcoming events at their October 7 meeting at Overlook Methodist Church hall.

An Ikebana lecture is scheduled for Thursday at Maryrose Academy Art Center building in Albany; a Landscape Design Course in New York City, October 27-29; and a Civic Beautification Conservation Workshop Day at Governor Clinton Hotel in Kingston on Tuesday, Oct. 27.

Reports were presented by Mrs. Clyde Deavers, recording secretary; Mrs. Otto E. Marquardt, treasurer; Mrs. Vincent Milora, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Henry Schwab, unsolicited awards chairman; Mrs. Arthur Jones, ways and means; Mrs. Ernest Muller, tree trust representative; Mrs. Kate Musof, librarian. Mrs. Decker Bradshaw, president, reported on the recent Third District meeting, informing members that the Woodstock Garden Club received the highest award of all Third District clubs for its yearbook.

Members voted to hold a flower show on June 19, 1971 and Conservation chairman, Mrs. S. Brainard West, discussed projects for the coming year.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Lamont W. Marvin who gave a lecture with slides on Ikebana, the exacting art of Japanese flower arranging. To illustrate important points, Mrs. Marvin used a number of arrangements which she had made. The slides were from photographs Lamont Marvin had taken in Florida.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ernest Muller, Mrs. Florence Saqui, and Mrs. Valentine Peyre. Mrs. Muller also made the flower arrangement on the tea table.

Penny Social Friday Evening

Friday evening, beginning at 6:30 p.m., Ulster Chapter, New York Diabetes Association, will hold a penny social in the Town Hall in Port Ewen. Additional attractions have been scheduled, refreshments will be available.

The penny social is the organization's major fund raising project of the year, proceeds of which will support the Camp Nyda Scholarship Fund. Camp Nyda is operated for diabetic children and is located in Burlington, near Pine Bush.

Diabetes Week is November 15 to 21. Ulster Chapter will be conducting a detection drive during the week.

Ackerman Family Reunion Held Recently at Tarrytown

In Tarrytown, Saturday, Oct. 17 for their annual reunion with "David Ackerman Descendants — 1662", Mrs. Arthur Frament of 13 Trenton Street Kingston, discovered intriguing ancestral links with the "Sleepy Hollow" of Dutch colonial times, made famous by Washington Irving in his "Sketch Book".

Also Mrs. J. P. Tobey, Bostock Road, Boiceville, attended and found at the "Old Dutch Church of Sleepy Hollow", dated 1697, that Lodowick Ackerman and his wife were among the first to worship there. Lodowick had been brought to America in 1662 as a teenager and was an elder son of the original Dutch ancestor David. Lodowick attended Old Dutch Church Kingston.

They also toured the nearby Philipsburg Manor Restoration, where Lodowick had lived with his family, working as a cordwainer and running his farm. "Sunnyside", Washington Irving's restored home, was also visited. Irving enlarged and remodeled the original little white cottage built in the late 1600s and later the home of the Ferris family whose daughter Letty married another Ackerman, Daniel, in 1808.

Discovery of the new Ackerman "cousins" is always welcomed. International Headquarters are at 1 Rich Court, Ho-Ho-Kus, New Jersey, 07423. Fellowship, strengthening family ties, and the study of ancestral links with the history of the early Dutch settlers in America, are the goals of the group.

Broadway Joe Is Sidelined for Six Weeks

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Jets announced Tuesday that quarterback Joe Namath will be sidelined for at least six weeks with a broken bone in his right wrist.

X-rays taken Tuesday at Lenox Hill Hospital confirmed that a bone in Namath's wrist was broken and the hand was placed in a cast. Dr. James Nicholas, the team physician, said the hand will be immobilized for six weeks. Dr. Nicholas said he did not know how long it would take for the bone break to heal.

Namath was injured in the fourth quarter of Sunday's 29-22 loss to the Baltimore Colts when he fell on his hand after defensive tackle Billy Ray Smith crashed into him. He finished the game, setting club records for passes attempted (62) and passes completed (34). He also had six passes intercepted, tying his own club record.

Namath, troubled by chronic knee injuries throughout his six-year career, has never missed a game with an injury. He had some previous trouble with the thumb of his right hand during the 1968 season—the year in which the Jets defeated Baltimore in the Super Bowl for the world championship.

Namath played part of the American Football League title game and a portion of the Super Bowl game with a jammed thumb.

The injury to Namath is the latest in a succession suffered by the Jets this season. Defensive end Gerry Philbin, an All-League choice, suffered a shoulder separation in the opening pre-season game against Buffalo and is just rounding into shape. Don Maynard, the Jets' veteran wide receiver, has been hit with a succession of various leg injuries and George Sauer, the other end, is bothered with a muscle pull. Matt Snell, the heart of the Jets' running game, suffered a ruptured Achilles tendon against Buffalo two weeks ago and is lost for the season.

Other injuries have stopped offensive tackle Roger Finnie, offensive guard Randy Rasmussen and defensive tackle Steve Thompson.

The Jets are now in dire need of a quarterback. Al Woodall, the backup man to Namath, has little experience and was unimpressive in exhibition play. Jim Turner, the Jets' kicker, has played quarterback but is not familiar with the offense and the only other player readily available is Bob Davis, a journeyman traded by Houston to the Giants during the off season and subsequently released. He is currently on the Jets' taxi squad and plays in the Atlantic Coast Football League.

With the trade deadline open until next Tuesday, it is highly probable that Weeb Ewbank, the Jets' coach and general manager, will trade for an experienced quarterback. John Hall of San Diego is supposedly being offered on the market.

Namath was unavailable for comment upon leaving the hospital and speculation is that the injury, which will sideline him for almost half the season, could prompt another retire-

HE'LL PASS WITH OTHER HAND — Accompanied by friend, Al Hassan, N. Y. Jets quarterback Joe Namath leaves hospital yesterday after having his fractured hand placed in a cast. Pistons, Knicks—Victorious

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Detroit Pistons had a bit too much quick and quickness for the Milwaukee Bucks, who just didn't have enough time.

The Pistons, the surprise team in the National Basketball Association thus far in the young season with a 4-0 record after finishing last in 1969-70, trailed the powerful Bucks 11-11 with 20 seconds left Tuesday night when Jimmy Walker flicked out a hand and stole the ball for the Pistons.

Dave Bing missed a drive, but Bob Quick rebounded to tie the score, was fouled on the play and sank the free throw to put Detroit ahead with five seconds remaining.

The Bucks got the ball and called time out with three seconds left, but they were called for a technical foul because they had no time outs remaining. Walker stepped to the line and calmly sank the free throw.

Still it wasn't over. Milwaukee took the ball in bounds. Lew Alcindor was fouled, and then sank only one of two free throws after the final gun, and Detroit had a 115-114 victory.

In other games, the New York Knicks, again led by an ailing Willis Reed, beat the Los Angeles Lakers 115-100; San Francisco halted Baltimore 125-105; Philadelphia also remained unbeaten in four games with a 98-89 victory over Buffalo; Portland ripped winless Cleveland 120-98 and San Diego nipped Phoenix 115-114.

The largest crowd ever to watch a Detroit game in Cobo Arena — 11,316—saw the wild finish as the Bucks had their record evened at 1-1. Bing finished with 37 points, Alcindor 38.

Brooks Catches Car

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The world finally has discovered what the Baltimore Orioles have known for 12 years—that Brooks Robinson is one for the money.

"Brooks is truly a money ball player," Orioles front office boss Harry Dalton said Tuesday as Robinson, hero of Baltimore's World Series triumph, picked up his first reward—a 1971 Dodge Charger presented by Sport Magazine to the outstanding player in the Series.

"He has always risen to the occasions for us," Dalton said. "But now, probably for the first time, the entire country is aware of what an outstanding ballplayer he is."

Robinson dazzled millions of television viewers across the nation with a spectacular hitting and fielding show to lead the Orioles past the Reds in five games—and put himself in line for a $100,000 salary next season.

"Yes, I'm going to ask for it," said the 33-year-old third baseman, who peppered Cincinnati pitching for nine hits, including a pair of home runs, and repeatedly shut off the Big Red Machine with his magic glove.

Then, with typical modesty, he paid tribute to his teammates for their Series blitz—one year after they had fallen to the New York Mets in baseball's October classic.

"It really wasn't a one-man show," Robinson said. "It took 24 other guys. Coming back to win this year meant a lot to all of us."

Of his acrobatics in the field, he explained: "I felt before the Series started that guys like Johnny Bench, Tony Perez and Lee May were going to pull the ball no matter who was pitching, and I was going to get some ground balls."

"But I don't remember any time in my career when I made three plays in three days like I did against them. I guess I was just in the right spot at the right time. Two or three inches either way and everything could have been different."

Kolln Seeks Starting Position

ALBANY — Dick Sauer, head coach of the Albany State University basketball team, is looking for a starting point guard for the 1970-71 season.

Werner Kolln, the 6'4", forward from Kingston High School, is one of the candidates.

Returning regulars, all seniors, are co-captains Jack Jordan (6-0, Green Island); Alan Reid (6-2, Binghamton); and guard Jim Masterson (6-1, Monroe Community College).

Three of the transfers are also strong candidates for first string assignments.

Hawks Drop JV Sports

By IRA FUSFELD

NEW PALTZ — The decision ended months of discussion on the topic. "We are phasing out JV wrestling, swimming, baseball, tennis, golf, and cross country," Owens said.

Two reasons were cited by Owens for the discontinuation of the junior varsity program: money and personnel.

ANDY MURPHY

Murphy Set At Siena

ALBANY — Former All-DUSO hoop star from Kingston HS, Andy Murphy, was among four returning veterans and six former team players to begin workouts for the coming season at Siena College.

Murphy, 6'1", averaged 9.9 points per game last year as a sophomore, his initial campaign on the Indian varsity.

Red Hook Gains Victory

The Raiders took four of five first places behind Chet Damon third behind Arlington's 13:10 by Al Service; Darren Kilgore finishing in 13:17, behind Damon's 13:12; and Jeff Thomson taking fifth in 13:23.

Kent Officials Seek Court OK To Criticize

KENT, Ohio (UPI)—Kent State University officials want court permission to criticize a grand jury report on the disorders and shootings on the campus last spring. Six more of the 25 persons indicted by the University President Robert I. White filed a petition in Tuesday. Portage County Court in nearby Ravenna. They asked that students and a youth with no White and others who testified connection to the university before the special state grand jury be allowed to "make any statements they desire to make in the exercise of their right of free speech."

Three students, two former persons have been charged in the violent disorders that culminated in the shooting deaths of four students by National Guardsmen May 4. The American Civil Liberties Union of Ohio earlier in the day filed a similar petition in U.S. Lawyers for Kent State District Court in Cleveland.

12,000 Iraqi Troops Leaving Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — The Vice President Hardan Takriti was ousted. Leaders of Iraq's ruling Baath party came under sharp criticism after the Iraqi force failed to come to the aid of the Palestinian guerrillas in the civil war in Jordan last month. The Iraqis had repeatedly pledged assistance for the guerrillas, but when the fighting broke out they did nothing.

The Iraqi forces came to Jordan after the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Since then they have been involved in a handful of artillery clashes with the Israelis and have been more of a headache to Hussein than to Israel.

Syrian forces stationed in Northern Jordan and the Iraqis were supposed to form the much talked about "Eastern front against Israel." But quarrels broke out between the Iraqis and the Syrians early this year, and there were mutual accusations that the other country was not doing its share.

Shoot to Kill Abductors, Judge Tells Police Officers

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — A judge from this South Georgia city, declaring, "I would rather die from the sheriff's bullets than give in to kidnapers," has ordered all law enforcement officers in his circuit to shoot any would-be abductors on the spot if an attempt is ever made to kidnap him.

"If I am ever taken hostage or if this court's district attorney is ever taken hostage, I have instructed every police officer in the circuit to shoot to kill," Judge Omer W. Franklin said in a recent charge to a Thomas County grand jury.

"If I get hit, that is the chance I am willing to take, and so is the district attorney," said the 56-year-old father of three, a Superior Court judge since 1969.

Franklin, a former president of the Georgia State Bar, said the matter had been on his mind since Judge Harold J. Haley was killed by a blast from a shotgun taped to his neck outside a San Rafael, Calif., courtroom Aug. 7, he said.

Haley was abducted from his courtroom in an escape attempt by a convict on trial and two convicts present to be witnesses. Haley, the convict on trial, one of the convict witnesses and an accomplice who had brought them guns were killed in a shootout at a van outside.

Franklin said he was in San Rafael shortly after the slaying, and that he and Haley had mutual friends.

Franklin said he decided to issue his instructions, and to make them public, as a means of "throwing the gauntlet down" to anyone with ideas of using him as a hostage.

"My thinking was that if you took away their shield, they wouldn't have anything to hide behind," Franklin said. "Also it's a matter of principle. I'd hate to have anyone use me."

Franklin said he has discussed his order with Dist. Atty. George A. Horkan of Moultrie and his fellow judge in the circuit, Judge Marcus B. Calhoun of Thomasville, and that both said, "I agree with you 100 per cent."

'Good Stop' By Firemen Saves Home

PORT EWEN Volunteer firefighters from the local units made a good stop Tuesday afternoon in quelling fire that erupted in the kitchen of the home of the Misses Alice and Elizabeth Whalen at 166 Hoyt Street, this community.

First Lt. Jay Bertha of the Port Ewen Fire Department who was in command of firemen at the scene, said Miss Alice Whalen was in her home and her sister, Elizabeth was visiting at a neighbor's when the fire broke out near a kerosene stove.

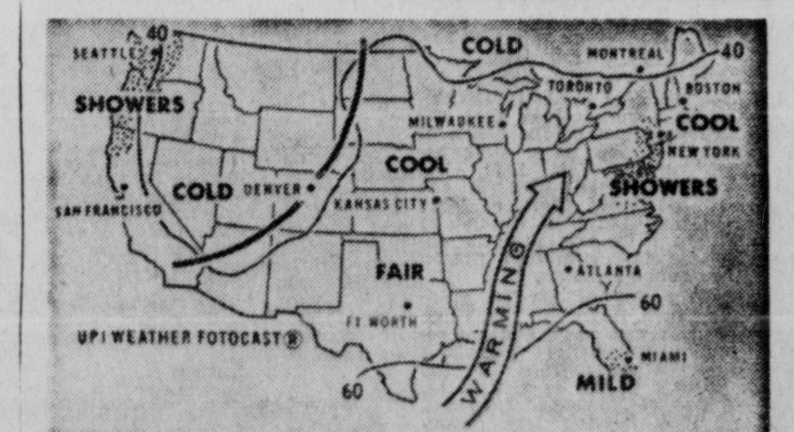

Miss Whalen hurried to the home of a next door neighbor, John Donnelly and notified him of the fire. Donnelly went to the Whalen residence and saw the doors closed, then he immediately called fire officials and the alarm was sounded at 1:55 p.m.

Lt. Bertha said that when firemen arrived they found fire in the kitchen and flames started to spread up the stairway, but volunteers acted quickly and stopped the spread of the blaze, which was confined to the kitchen area and a section of the dining room.

Smoke spread throughout the 2½-story frame residence owned by the Whalen sisters.

Alice Whalen, 80, was administered oxygen at the scene by firemen until the arrival of Doctors Ambulance. She was taken to Benedictine Hospital for further treatment for shock.

Another fire was reported in the Glasco Fire District. Firemen responded to a call at about 4:30 p.m., after fire was reported burning the flooring near a fireplace in the Dutch Reformed Church. Burning of the fireplace apparently ignited the flooring. The blaze was quickly extinguished and damage was reported minor.

Police Have Car Apparently Used By Killers in Slayings on Coast

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Investigators say they have found the car killers apparently used to escape from a burning hilltop mansion where a wealthy eye surgeon, his wife, two young sons and secretary were bound, shot to death and dumped into a swimming pool.

The green Oldsmobile station wagon belonging to Virginia Ohta was found Tuesday by the engineer of a Southern Pacific train in a railway tunnel a few miles north of here.

The engineer said the car was not there when he went up the narrow, forested canyon at 3 p.m. but was burning in the tunnel when he came back down at 4:45. He used the train to push the car out of the tunnel.

No one was seen at the time. Southern Pacific officials said. Sheriff's deputies put up roadblocks and began questioning pedestrians and vehicle occupants along nearby California 9.

Mrs. Ohta, 43, her husband, Dr. Victor Ohta, 45, their two sons, Derrick, 12, and Taggart, 11, and a secretary, Dorothy Cadwallader, 38, were found bound and shot in the back of the head, in the swimming pool at Dr. Ohta's $250,000 hilltop home a few miles east of here Monday night.

The home, several hundred yards from the nearest neighbor, was burning fiercely from fires set throughout its 10 rooms, sheriff's officers said.

Dr. Ohta, an ophthalmological surgeon with a thriving practice, had been shot once more than the rest. He had an extra shot in the back.

Sheriff Douglas James of Santa Cruz County said two fire arms may have been used—apparently a .38 and a .22.

Autopsies and other aspects of the investigation continued under close secrecy.

Authorities did not link the Ohta slayings with another of similar characteristics discovered Tuesday morning 30 miles north of Santa Cruz at Saratoga. A filling station attendant, Thomas DeCocco, 19, was found bound and shot in the back of the head at the service station where he worked.

The Ohtas and Mrs. Cadwallader all had their hands tied in front of them with the bright silk scarves that Dr. Ohta liked to wear around his neck. The heads of three were swathed in scarves, and two other scarves found in the pool indicated the two other victims had been similarly hooded.

"It was like an execution," one sheriff's deputy said.

"We have no weapon, no suspect, no motive," another said.

Two Ohta daughters, Taura, 18, attending college in New York, and Lark Elizabeth, 15, at a Monterey, Calif., boarding school, were safe.

Dear Abby

Dresses for Attention

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: There is a girl in our office who is pretty, polite and ladylike in her behavior, but she comes to work dressed like a strip tease. Sheer, see-thru blouses, low necklines, no bra, and the tightest and shortest skirts imaginable. At our annual office picnic she wore a bikini that left absolutely nothing to the imagination.

Meanwhile, back at the office, every man in the place has a tough time keeping his eyes off her. The girl here who knows her best says she's really a "nice" kid who has had a rough life. She was raised by a mother alone as her father ran off when this girl was an infant. Why should a "nice" girl want to make such a bad impression? She's only 18. Or maybe she isn't so "nice" after all?

WONDERING: Yes, she could be a "nice" girl. Girls whose fathers never paid any attention to them seek in various ways to get attention from every other man they meet. By showing off her body to strange men, this girl is saying, "Hey, fellows, pay some attention to me!" She's trying now to get the male attention she lacked while growing up. And she'll do practically anything to get it.

DEAR ABBY: We have a female toy poodle and I think she is obedient, intelligent, happy and healthy. My wife disagrees. She thinks the dog has "problems" so she wants to take the dog to a "dog psychiatrist" to have it "analyzed." Our next door neighbor swears it has done wonders for her dog.

Have you, or any of your readers ever heard of a "dog psychiatrist?" It sounds like another racket to me.

CONFUSED IN LAGUNA HILLS
DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old college sophomore, female type. I don't smoke pot, I don't riot, I would never burn an American flag, and I still get choked up when I hear our National anthem. I get mad at things in our world, but I believe in discussion, peaceful changes and prayer. Maybe this sounds dull, but I am happy and this is my thing.

I am "nice" — not because my parents refused to let me play with "bad" kids, but because my parents taught me to be nice. I had some "bad" playmates, but I tried to help them, and they didn't hurt me. Last of all, I feel that we have a God-given responsibility to help others. God bless patient, understanding parents who try to guide their children without trying to live their children's lives. God bless my parents.

A WINNER
DEAR ABBY: Too bad you didn't sign your name. Your parents would be proud of you.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the 50-ish mother resisting her young daughter's attempts to "up-date" her into shorts, reminds me of my own experience a number of years ago when I tried to do the same with my mother.

While still in high school I decided that what my 5 foot, 110-lb. mother really needed was a padded uplift bra. Probably just to quiet me, mom gave in and was fitted for one. That evening at dinner I asked my father, "How do you like mom's new up-lift bra? He took a good long look and sighed, "Well, I guess it's all right if her chin itches."

Needless to say, Mom never wore it again. They just celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day when it would be wise to think in terms of what can be done best to please and delight others. It is also an unusually good time to shop for articles of beauty, apparel or gifts you would like to give to one of whom you are very fond. Make a point to study ads in your newspaper for household articles.

ARIES (May 21 to Apr. 19): A perfect day to remove those things around the home that spoil its beauty and replace with new ones. Take it easy at home tonight or entertain good friends leisurely there. Show gracefulness.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): The planets are favorable and you can buy or sell very easily and well, as well as get home improved. Talk over with associates how to have improved working conditions for the future. Take time for a little fun in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Concentrate on what will bring you more abundance in the future, ethically and sensibly. Improving whatever you own adds to their value. Stop being so stubborn with mate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Attend social which means a great deal to you. This could be along the romantic line, since the planets are favorable. Do some entertaining and show affection for those you like. Avoid histrionics of any kind.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): If you study the true motives of others, you know why you have been reacting as you have lately. Come to a better understanding. Closet yourself with an expert and get the advice you need. Make this a most productive day.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Seek to find out what good pals' expectations are and do your utmost to please them. Evening is a good time for entertaining or accepting invitations of worth. Stop lolling about so much.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Make certain you know what higher-ups expect of you and then do your best to please them. Do your share of the work. Get into community affairs that add much to present prestige in all you do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Take a pause from dull routine and know better where you are headed in the future so that you can really advance. There are new personalities you can meet who will help you along such lines. Make it your business to contact them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Ideal time to attend new places of recreation with new partners so that you relax and understand one another better. Facing better ways to please mate is wise. You have been a bit neglectful lately.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): You know exactly what to do today, so meet those responsibilities swiftly and precisely. Conduct business with associates and others while in pleasant surroundings. Show cleverness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Show that you are willing to do more than your share of work to keep harmony with others. Later in the day find just the right kind of clothing that brings out your particular charm. Avoid gaudiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Although you may feel lackadaisical, make an effort to get out with others and have a good time and accomplish things. Go out of your way to show mate how much you really care. You haven't been very tender lately.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those persons who thinks that romance is just a one-sided business, with the other person making all the effort. So it behooves you to teach early that through cooperation life can be successful in business or in personal matters. There may be too much deliberation here, but otherwise your progeny understands pretty much how to please others, once the habit of work is acquired. Religion important here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU! Carroll Righter's Individual Forecast for your sign for November is now ready. For a copy, send your birthdate and $1 to Carroll Righter Forecast, The Daily Freeman, Box 629, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

WALT DISNEY'S True Life Adventures

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

TORN: (Q.) What can a girl say to a boy to explain to him that because of her faith she can't go with him any longer?

I meet a lot of boys whose religion and background are different from mine. After a few dates we begin to get serious, or my parents begin to worry, and I have to break off completely.

It makes me feel immature to tell a boy that my parents don't want me to see anyone who's not of my religion. And if I tell him on my own that I can't go with him because of my religion he gets insulted.

I've just met a wonderful boy who really likes me a lot. But because of my parents' pressure I had to make up an excuse and refuse a date with him. What do you think I should do?—19 in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

(A.) The most reliable rule is an old one: Never date a boy you wouldn't want to marry.

What you have not apparently done, however, is to decide whether you—yourself, personally—would want to marry a man not of your religious faith.

Your parents do not want you to. They have advised and urged you not to. This is their right, and it is their duty to teach you what they themselves believe to be right. It is your duty to consider their counsel.

But you are the one who finally has to decide what your life is to be.

At 19 you are old enough to make your own decisions and to start shaping your own life, either in your parents' pattern or another one. No one else can do this for you.

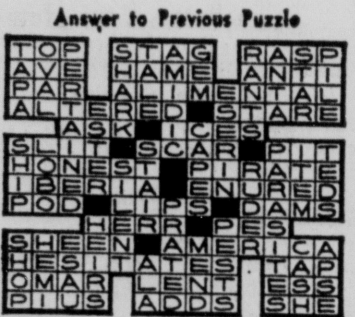

WIG WORRY: (Q.) I wear a wig about eight hours a day, but not at night. Will this hurt my own hair in any way?—Don't Want to Get Bald in Newport, R. I.

(A.) Wearing a wig to school or work won't do any harm if you brush your natural hair night and morning and shampoo it regularly.

The Tube and Campaigning

NEW YORK (AP) — "CBS lets you buy TV time. That's the Reports" showed Tuesday night.

The hour, loaded with examples of current TV campaigning, concentrated on two campaigns: New York's three-cornered Senate race in which, Wallace estimated, each candidate will spend some $750,000 on TV, and on the Senate campaigns of two rich Ohio candidates, Democrat Howard Metzenbaum and Republican Robert Taft. Some of the most successful TV "image makers" — the professional producers of political commercials — were interviewed about their craft.

There were a number of suggestions on controlling political advertising, but Wallace concluded that things will not change much — unless "the American voter thinks he's being had."

You aren't going to run into many cases of the partner of a two-club opener having enough points for a two-no-trump response but South did have the 10 points needed.

This crowded the bidding a trifle. North had to show his suit at the three level. Then South had to go to the four level to show his club suit and North could find no better rebid than four hearts. He hoped there was a slam in the offing, but his opening two-club bid was based on only 18 high-card points. He was looking at two possible quick losers in spades.

This put it squarely up to South and he decided to bid four spades, to show the ace. He couldn't be showing a spade suit because North had made it clear that his opening bid was based on a long, strong, heart suit.

South's spade cue-bid gave North the green light for Blackwood. He knew that South was only going to show him one ace but North was getting ready to follow up with a five-no-trump call to ask for kings.

North planned to gamble on seven if South were to show two kings but South had better ideas.

It was a forthright, illuminating program which the campaigners and their commercial-makers probably hated.

With all the freedom an anthology provides, ABC's "Movie of the Week" is as variable in quality as spring weather. "Wild Women," Tuesday night's 90-minute program, was the equivalent of a cold, rainy night.

It was a comedy switch of the classic Western.

Hugh O'Brian, looking dashing as a frontier guide, had been hired to lead a caravan, loaded with cannon for a beleaguered Texas garrison, through hostile country. To conceal their cargo, the men were supplied with "wives," decoys who were actually women convicts promised pardons if they carried off the scheme.

The ladies had a tendency to fight among themselves, get drunk and otherwise act up, but in the end it seemed they all had hearts of gold and rode into the sunset, each with the man to whom she had been assigned. It was all pretty bad.

Candidates Give Views At New Paltz College Caucus

By JON POWERS

NEW PALTZ — Although he wouldn't favor turning their back on the well in a student opinion poll, Harry Hoffman, Conservative Party candidate for the 27th Congressional District seat was the "star" of the show Tuesday afternoon as spokesmen for all angles of the political spectrum presented their platforms to students at the State University College at New Paltz.

Hoffman's comments, including, "Of course I'd rather be dead than red," prompted a stream of queries from students during the question and answer period. The audience, ranging from grade schoolers to grandmothers, but consisting primarily of college students, greeted many of Hoffman's statements with scattered laughter and boos.

The occasion was a "candidate's caucus" sponsored by the Political Science Club at the college. In addition to Hoffman, participants included Alex Nirenberg, Democratic-Liberal candidate for District Attorney; George Barthel, Democratic-Liberal candidate for State Senate; David Lenefsky, Democratic-Liberal candidate for State Assembly; Assistant State Attorney General Herbert Wallace, representing Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz and the day's most engaging speaker, Mrs. Susanne Bedell, representing incumbent U.S. Senator Charles E. Goodell.

But if Hoffman was awed by the "leftward" leaning of his fellow panel members, he didn't show it. The only bonafide conservative in the group, he quickly lived up to his billing by condemning "liberalism," a advocating reductions in welfare payments and claiming that the conflict in Southeast Asia is necessary and justifiable.

Striking out at dissenting radicals and those who have turned their back on the political system ("Drop outs are cop outs"), Hoffman maintained that "civilization functions in a state of law and order, and there can be no progress in any other system."

He further warned that "The law of the jungle will come into effect" without law and order and if people refuse to operate for change within the system. Charging that the "liberalism" of the past 35 years has led to a "permissiveness" within the country, Hoffman maintained that, as a result, "People think they have to disobey laws to get things done."

The other candidates on the panel had an easier time with the audience. Nirenberg, claiming that "Youth is merely a synonym for our future," again urged a re-assessment of state narcotic laws. He called for a revision of state laws that term "drugs" used by youth as illegal and drugs used by the old as legal, and he charged that current law enforcers "won't prosecute organized crime, but they just love to bust kids possessing grass."

Nirenberg also scored his opponent, Francis J. Vogt, for advocating unlimited "search and seizure of automobiles," as a solution to the narcotics traffic problem. He added, "The only solution will come when we end this hypocrisy."

The Ellenville attorney, instead, urged solidification of the family unit and better training for school teachers.

Nirenberg's fellow Ellenville Democrat, George M. Barthel, seeking to unseat incumbent Republican H. Clark Bell of Woodstock, stuck to his platform of re-evaluation of state spending priorities. Calling the $1 billion Pure Waters Act "unsuccessful" and the $1 billion Albany Mall construction a "waste," Barthel urged wage and price controls to curb inflation.

Like Nirenberg, Barthel also had criticism for the state's narcotics program. Stating that Gov. Rockefeller has wasted $320 million on the current state program while admitting "it has been a failure," Barthel urged more funds for local community agencies, such as storefronts and the Peer Group Approach. He emphasized that the drug problem "must be treated with firmness but, with compassion."

Wallace, however, disdained criticism and, instead, concentrated on the programs instituted under Lefkowitz' administration. The Assistant Attorney General from Poughkeepsie cited several steps taken by Lefkowitz to reduce "consumer fraud," claiming that the Attorney General has recovered more than $10 million for residents who have been victimized by fraudulent business dealings.

Lenefsky kept his remarks short and concise. He said that he wanted to "irk" his opponent, (State Assemblyman Jay P. Rolison) but couldn't because "he's not here." The Shoham Democrat then went on to urge students to get actively involved in the campaign in the county.

"Ulster County," said Lenefsky, "is ideal for student involvement because all the problems are right here. He cited the county's 6.1 per cent unemployment rate as being above the state and national average and well above the 2.9

per cent rate in Dutchess county. The county's per capita income, alleged Lenefsky, is far below both state and federal levels and he also cited a "housing crises" and "dangerous lack of medical aid."

"You have the framework right here with which to work," said Lenefsky. "If you care, Ulster County will be a better place; if you don't care, the problems will never be solved," he added.

The most engaging, and refreshing speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Susanne Bedell, who urged her listeners to study the writings of Ayn Rand because, she said, "That's where most of the conservative ideas come from." She contended that Conservative Senate candidate James Buckley (whom she described as a "charming millionaire from Connecticut") is "attempting to put Ayn Rand's philosophies into realistic practice," which, she added, "doesn't exactly fill me with unmitigated joy."

An able representative for Goodell, Mrs. Bedell charged "political purging," and she contended that there is "room for diverging political points of view within the party."

The Hungarian born graduate of Vassar College said, "I've lived very close to the Communist way of doing things, and I don't like it one bit, and that's why I'm supporting Senator Goodell."

Defending Goodell's alleged switch from right to left, Mrs. Bedell stated, "As his world enlarged (from upstate Congressman to U.S. Senator) he increased his horizons." She added, "You can't take one

Commerce Head Is Embroiled In Controversy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, the man President Nixon placed in charge of the administration's showcase black capitalism program, is embroiled in controversy because of what some Negroes regard as racial slurs.

Stans agreed Tuesday to stop showing a sound-on-film home movie of his 1965 safari to Chad in Africa because it refers to African bearers as "boys" and "natives."

The secretary, in a letter to a reporter who protested the language, said he had meant no offense and the objections to the film "came as a surprise."

But Simeon Booker, Washington bureau chief of Jet and Ebony — magazines directed to the black market — said he was dismayed that "a Cabinet member who is dealing in black capitalism is so insensitive as to call Africans 'boys.'"

"It shows he's in another world," Booker said in commenting on the matter.
